

The background of the book cover is a photograph of a bushfire. The flames are intense, with bright orange and red colors. The smoke is thick and billowing, appearing as dark grey and black clouds. The ground in the foreground is covered in ash and charred remains of vegetation. The overall atmosphere is one of destruction and power.

The Rhine Mark Cioc, 2009-11-17 The Rhine River is Europe's most important commercial waterway channeling the flow of trade among Switzerland France

Germany and the Netherlands In this innovative study Mark Cioc focuses on the river from the moment when the Congress of Vienna established a multinational commission charged with making the river more efficient for purposes of trade and commerce in 1815 He examines the engineering and administrative decisions of the next century and a half that resulted in rapid industrial growth as well as profound environmental degradation and highlights the partially successful restoration efforts undertaken from the 1970s to the present The Rhine is a classic example of a multipurpose river used simultaneously for transportation for industry and agriculture for urban drinking and sanitation needs for hydroelectric production and for recreation It thus invites comparison with similarly overburdened rivers such as the Mississippi Hudson Colorado and Columbia The Rhine's environmental problems are however even greater than those of other rivers because it is so densely populated 50 million people live along its borders so highly industrialized 10% of global chemical production and so short 775 miles in length Two centuries of nonstop hydraulic tinkering have resulted in a Rhine with a sleek and slender profile In their quest for a perfect canal-like river engineers have modified it more than any other large river in the world As a consequence between 1815 and 1975 the river lost most of its natural floodplain riverside vegetation migratory fish and biodiversity Recent efforts to restore that biodiversity though heartening can have only limited success because so many of the structural changes to the river are irreversible The Rhine An Eco Biography 1815 2000 makes clear just how central the river has been to all aspects of European political economic and environmental life for the past two hundred years

The Dawn of Conservation Diplomacy Kurkpatrick Dorsey, 2009-11-17 In the first decades of the twentieth century fish in the Great Lakes and Puget Sound seals in the North Pacific and birds across North America faced a common threat over harvesting that threatened extinction for many species Progressive era conservationists saw a need for government intervention to protect threatened animals And because so many species migrated across international political boundaries their protectors saw the necessity of international conservation agreements In The Dawn of Conservation Diplomacy Kurkpatrick Dorsey examines the first three comprehensive wildlife conservation treaties in history all between the United States and Canada the Inland

Fisheries Treaty of 1908 the North Pacific Fur Seal Convention of 1911 and the Migratory Bird Treaty of 1916 In his highly readable text Dorsey argues that successful conservation treaties came only after conservationists learned to marshal scientific evidence public sentiment and economic incentives in their campaigns for protective legislation The first treaty intended to rescue the overfished boundary waters failed to gain the necessary support and never became law Despite scientific evidence of the need for conservation politicians and the general public were unable to counter the vocal opposition of fishermen across the continent A few years later conservationists successfully rallied popular sympathy for fur seals threatened with slaughter and the North Pacific Fur Seal Convention was adopted By the time of the Migratory Bird Treaty of 1916 the importance of aesthetic appeal was clear North American citizens were joining chapters of the Audubon Society in efforts to protect beautiful songbirds Conservationists also presented economic evidence to support their efforts as they argued that threatened bird species provided invaluable service to farmers Dorsey recounts the story of each of these early treaties examining the scientific research that provided the basis for each effort acknowledging the complexity of the issues and presenting the personalities behind the politics He argues that these decades old treaties both directly affect us today and offer lessons for future conservation efforts

Burn Paul Collins, 2008-12-01 Dry heat and hot dry winds worked upon a land already dry to suck from it the last least drop of moisture. Men who had lived their lives in the bush went their ways in the shadow of dread expectancy. But though they felt the imminence of danger they could not tell that it was to be far greater than they could imagine. They had not lived long enough. Report of the Royal Commission into the bushfires of January 1939. With the start of every bushfire season and the first threatening hints of burning eucalypt in the air we are reminded no matter where we live that bushfire is an inescapable reality in this country. In Burn Paul Collins tells the epic story of bushfire in Australia drawing on accounts of the most devastating conflagrations in Australia's European history from the 1851 Black Thursday fire which burnt out one quarter of Victoria to the 1939 Black Friday fires which took many lives and destroyed thousands of hectares in Victoria, New South Wales, South Australia and Tasmania, the Canberra inferno of 2003 and the Black Saturday fires of February 2009.

Frightening. Compelling, vivid and provocative, Burn reveals stories of heroism, stupidity, political incompetence and environmental vandalism. This is the grand narrative of bushfire in Australia, the most fire-prone land on Earth.

World Fire

Stephen J. Pyne, 1997 World Fire is the story of how fire and humans have coevolved. The two are inseparable and together they have repeatedly remade the planet.

Burning Table Mountain S. Pooley, 2014-09-19 Cape Town's iconic Table Mountain and the surrounding peninsula has been a crucible for attempts to integrate the social and ecological dimensions of wild fire. This environmental history of humans and wildfire outlines these interactions from the practices of Khoikhoi herders to the conflagrations of January 2000. The region's unique, famously diverse fynbos vegetation has been transformed since European colonial settlement through urbanisation and biological modifications, both intentional forestry and unintentional biological invasions. In all the diverse visions people have formed for Table Mountain aesthetic and utilitarian fire has been regarded as a central problem. This book shows how scientific understandings of fire in fynbos developed slowly in the face of strong prejudices. Human impacts were intensified in the twentieth century which provides the temporal focus for the book.

The disjunctions between popular perception expert knowledge policy and management are explored and the book supplements existing short term scientific data with proxies on fire incidence trends recovered from historical records
