Business Associations And The Financing Of Political Parties:

Business Associations and the Financing of Political Parties Arnold J. Heidenheimer, Frank C. Langdon, 2012-12-06
Students of government and social power recognize that wherever governmental systems embrace popular elections the functions and mechanisms of political finance constitute inevitable links of influence between economic structures and political processes The transmutation of economic power into political power has been of historic concern from ancient philosophers to modern political scientists Efforts to discern and interpret the political roles of those engaged in funding candidates and political parties have intensified in recent years Attention given the subject has deepened substantially in the United States since World War II and while there have been differences in range and quality serious analytical interests have also developed in numerous other nations around the world These trends have been accompanied by increasingly more energetic and sophisticated attempts at comparative analysis Problems in transnational studies of political processes have always been formidable The comparative study of political finance has been retarded by difficulties in defining units of analysis that make it possible to identify in some measurable way the effects of political finance in precise phases of the governing process e.g. in the persuasion of voters in party nominating processes in executive decision making Cash transactions even when known with confidence constitute only a partial aspect of political finance Other shades of economic power may be equally relevant involving services or goods directly provided credits and other economic benefits extended or withheld and the exercise of less tangible but equally potent influence

Political Parties, Business Groups, and Corruption in Developing Countries Vineeta Yadav, 2011-04-13 Political corruption is one of the globe's most pressing yet seemingly permanent problems It is a root cause of low growth and inequality and plagues numerous nations throughout the world in varying degrees In Political Parties Business Groups and Corruption in Developing Countries Vineeta Yadav tackles the puzzle of corruption by analyzing the role that business lobbying plays in it She shows that the structure of a developing nation's legislative institutions frequently determines whether such institutions promote or restrain corruption Combining focused studies of legislative institutions and business groups in India and Brazil with a broader survey of corruption in sixty-four developing democracies Yadav shows how systems with powerful parties rather than ones with powerful individual legislators encourage the most corruption A rigorous comparative examination of the connections between political institutions lobbying and corruption this work will reshape our understanding of how developing country democracies can both discourage and encourage bribery vote buying and influence peddling
