Assessing Chronic Disease Management European:

Assessing Chronic Disease Management in European Health Systems WHO Regional Office for Europe, 2015-06-09 This book systematically examines experiences of 12 countries in Europe using an explicit comparative approach and a unified framework for assessment to better understand the diverse range of contexts in which new approaches to chronic care are being implemented and to evaluate the outcomes of these initiatives The study focuses in on the content of these new models which are frequently applied from different disciplinary and professional perspectives and associated with different goals and does so through analyzing approaches to self management support service delivery design and decision support strategies financing availability and access Significantly it also illustrates the challenges faced by individual patients as they pass through the system

Assessing Chronic Disease Management in European Health Systems World Health Organization, 2015-12-16 This publication explores some of the key issues ranging from interpreting the evidence base to assessing the policy context for and approaches to chronic disease management across Europe Drawing on 12 detailed country reports available in a second online volume the study provides insights into the range of care models and the people involved in delivering these payment mechanisms and service user access and challenges faced by countries in the implementation and evaluation of these novel approaches

Handbook Integrated Care Volker Amelung, Viktoria Stein, Nicholas Goodwin, Ran Balicer, Ellen Nolte, Esther Suter, 2017-06-30 This handbook gives profound insight into the main ideas and concepts of integrated care It offers a managed care perspective with a focus on patient orientation efficiency and quality by applying widely recognized management approaches to the field of health care The handbook also provides international best practices and shows how integrated care does work throughout various health systems The delivery of health and social care is characterised by fragmentation and complexity in most health systems throughout the world Therefore much of the recent international discussion in the field of health policy and health management has focused on the topic of integrated care Integrated acknowledges the complexity of patients needs and aims to meet it by taking into account both health and social care aspects Changing and improving processes in a coordinated way is at the heart of this approach

Handbook of Integrated Care Volker Amelung, Viktoria Stein, Esther Suter, Nicholas Goodwin, Ran Balicer, Anna-Sophia Beese, 2025-11-03 This handbook shares profound insights into the main principles and concepts of integrated care It offers a multi disciplinary perspective with a focus on patient orientation efficiency and quality by applying widely recognized management approaches to the field of healthcare The handbook also highlights international best practices and shows how integrated care can work in various health systems In the majority of health systems around the world the delivery of healthcare and social care is characterised by fragmentation and complexity Consequently much of the recent international discussion in the fields of health policy and health management has focused on the topic of integrated care Integrated acknowledges the complexity of patients needs and aims to meet them by taking into account both health and social care

aspects Changing and improving processes in a coordinated way is at the heart of this approach The third edition offers new chapters on people centredness complexity theories and evaluation methods additional management tools and a wealth of experiences from different countries and localities It is essential reading both for health policymakers seeking inspiration for legislation and for practitioners involved in the management of public health services who want to learn from good practice

Toolkit for developing a multisectoral action plan for noncommunicable diseases. Module 5. Evaluating the implementation of a multisectoral action plan ,2022-04-14      Evaluating Chronic Disease Management Ellen Nolte,2012 The report forms part of the DISMEVAL project funded under the European Commission s 7th Framework Programme It is targeted at policymakers programme operators and researchers explaining choices options and trade offs for the evaluation of disease management based on analyses undertaken within the project Many of the issues discussed can be seen to apply to any evaluation of complex interventions in healthcare However there are specific concerns around evaluation design and metrics that are of relevance to the evaluation of disease management in particular and that are examined in the report These include i the context for evaluating disease management exploring the reasons for undertaking evaluation in the first place and explaining some of the underlying principles for doing so ii the methods and metrics for evaluating disease management focusing specifically on themes that have emerged as being pertinent to work carried out within the DISMEVAL project iii practical considerations for disease management evaluation based on experience of work undertaken in DISMEVAL and v the broader challenges and lessons learned that may be relevant for policymakers funders and practitioners interested in the use and usefulness of disease management evaluation more generally This publication provides a major resource to guide the evaluation of disease management interventions in European settings and so contributes to strengthening the evidence base required to inform the selection of efficient and effective interventions to address the growing burden of chronic disease in Europe      DISMEVAL Ellen Nolte,Saba Hinrichs,2012 The report documents the overall findings of the work carried out within the DISMEVAL project which was funded under the European Commission0 9s 7th Framework Programme It sought to review current approaches to chronic care and their evaluations as implemented by EU Member States at national and regional levels and to explore the policy context for chronic disease management in European countries Reporting on the range of approaches to chronic care adopted in 13 European countries it emphasises the need for the development of a coherent response to chronic disease that takes account of the various tiers in the system and along the care continuum with involvement of professionals forming a crucial component for achieving sustainable change The DISMEVAL project further sought to test and validate different evaluation methods using existing data from disease management interventions in six countries In doing so it advances the research base in evaluation design and methodology so informing the design of future evaluations and enhancing their value for decisionmaking Work carried out identified and tested a wide range of methods that can be employed in situations where experimental approaches are not possible emphasising that rigorous evaluation is still possible where baseline or predefined control groups are not available and how advanced designs can help better understand how different combinations of care components and processes might be effective for managing chronic disease in patients with different characteristics It argues how future evaluation work drawing on such approaches should provide insight into what works for whom in the area of disease management a question that randomised trials have thus far been unable to answer

Tackling Chronic Disease in Europe Reinhard Busse,2010 Strategic discussed in the second part of this volume include 1 prevention and early detection 2 new provider qualifications e g nurse practitioners and settings 3 disease management programmes and 4 integrated care models But choosing the right strategies will be difficult particularly given the limited evidence on effectiveness and cost effectiveness

Assessing Hypertension Control and Management World Hypertension League,1993 This publication reports on the results of a WHO project carried out to assess the levels and quality of the management of hypertension in selected european countries Best known as the hypertension management audit project it began in 1983 It looked at physicians awareness of hypertension as reflected by how much went undiagnosed the quality of the care given to known sufferers the feelings of patients about their condition and the treatment they were receiving the attitudes and knowledge of physicians and the amount of antihypertensive drug prescriptions issued

DISMEVAL RAND Europe,Rand Corporation,European Commission,2012 The report documents the overall findings of the work carried out within the DISMEVAL project which was funded under the European Commission0 9s 7th Framework Programme It sought to review current approaches to chronic care and their evaluations as implemented by EU Member States at national and regional levels and to explore the policy context for chronic disease management in European countries Reporting on the range of approaches to chronic care adopted in 13 European countries it emphasises the need for the development of a coherent response to chronic disease that takes account of the various tiers in the system and along the care continuum with involvement of professionals forming a crucial component for achieving sustainable change The DISMEVAL project further sought to test and validate different evaluation methods using existing data from disease management interventions in six countries In doing so it advances the research base in evaluation design and methodology so informing the design of future evaluations and enhancing their value for decisionmaking Work carried out identified and tested a wide range of methods that can be employed in situations where experimental approaches are not possible emphasising that rigorous evaluation is still possible where baseline or predefined control groups are not available and how advanced designs can help better understand how different combinations of care components and processes might be effective for managing chronic disease in patients with different characteristics It argues how future evaluation work drawing on such approaches should provide insight into what works for whom in the area of disease management a question that randomised trials have thus far been unable to answer
