Avoiding The Fall Chinas Economic Restructuring:

Avoiding the Fall Michael Pettis,2013 It is increasingly accepted that China s growth model which served it very well in the 1980s and 90s reached its useful limit during the past decade As a result although China continued to post spectacular GDP growth numbers this growth came with a cost unsustainable imbalances and even faster growth in debt With China s new generation of leaders formally taking power in early 2013 it clearly must restructure its development model to achieve a very different kind of growth A Chinese rebalancing is inevitable and the most interesting question is how it will occur In Restructuring the Chinese Economy Michael Pettis outlines six paths that China can follow the only logical paths that lead ultimately to rebalancing and discusses the political and economic strengths and limitations of each These paths range from debt crisis and negative growth at one extreme to a massive wealth transfer from the state to Chinese households with steady growth for many years at the other How Beijing chooses will determine China s position in the world for the rest of the century challenge the West and later the Soviet Union Also important to China and driving its aid and investment was China's pursuit of Communist Bloc solidarity a search for secure borders and competition with India for influence in the Third World Securing its imports of energy and raw materials and markets for its products came later Marginalizing Taiwan and defeating it diplomatically constituted another goal of China's foreign aid and foreign investment analyzed here Networking

China Yu Hong, 2017-01-11 In recent years China's leaders have taken decisive action to transform information communications and technology ICT into the nation's next pillar industry In Networking China Yu Hong offers an overdue examination of that burgeoning sector's political economy Hong focuses on how the state in conjunction with market forces and class interests is constructing and realigning its digitalized sector State planners intend to build a more competitive ICT sector by modernizing the network infrastructure corporatizing media and entertainment institutions and by using ICT as a crosscutting catalyst for innovation industrial modernization and export upgrades The goal to end China's industrial and technological dependence upon foreign corporations while transforming itself into a global ICT leader The project though bright with possibilities unleashes implications rife with contradiction and surprise Hong analyzes the central role of information communications and culture in Chinese style capitalism She also argues that the state and elites have failed to challenge entrenched interests or redistribute power and resources as promised Instead they prioritize information communications and culture as technological fixes to make pragmatic tradeoffs between economic growth and social justice

Innovation in China Richard P. Appelbaum, Cong Cao, Xueying Han, Rachel Parker, Denis Simon, 2018-10-15 China is in the midst of transitioning from a manufacturing based economy to one driven by innovation and knowledge This up to date analysis evaluates China's state led approach to science and technology and its successes and failures In recent decades China has seen huge investments in high tech science parks a surge in home grown top ranked global companies and a significant increase in scientific publications and patents Helped by state policies and a flexible business culture the country has been able to leapfrog its way to a more globally competitive position However the authors argue that this approach might not yield the same level of progress going forward if China does not address serious institutional organizational and cultural obstacles While not impossible this task may well prove to be more difficult for the Chinese Communist Party than the challenges that China has faced in the past The Routledge Handbook of Chinese Studies Chris Shei, Weixiao Wei, 2021-05-30 This Handbook approaches Chinese Studies from an interdisciplinary perspective while attempting to establish a fundamental set of core values and tenets for the subject in relation to the further development of Chinese Studies as an academic discipline. But the rise of China foreshadows a change in the distribution of power. Tunsjø shows that the international system is moving toward a U S China standoff bringing us back to bipolarity a system in which no third power can challenge the top two. The Return of Bipolarity in World Politics surveys the new era of superpowers to argue that the combined effects of the narrowing power gap between China and the United States and the widening power gap between China and any third ranking power portend a new bipolar system that will differ in crucial ways from that of the last century. Tunsjø expands Kenneth N Waltz's structural realist theory to examine the new bipolarity within the context of geopolitics which he calls geostructural realism. He considers how a new bipolar system will affect balancing and stability in U S China relations predicting that the new bipolarity will not be as prone to arms races as the previous era's that the risk of limited war between the two superpowers is likely to be higher in the coming bipolarity especially since the two powers are primarily rivals at sea rather than on land and that the superpowers are likely to be preoccupied with rivalry and conflict in East Asia instead of globally. Tunsjø presents a major challenge to how international relations understands superpowers in the twenty-first century China's Economic Restructuring, 1991 China Economic Review, 1996 China, 2002 And recommendations Background Chinese workers and economic rights Protest in the Northeast Analysis Appendix 1 Appendix 2 Appendix 3 Appendix 4 China Fulin Chi, 2004 New China Quarterly, 1992 Beijing Review, 2011-09 Summary of World Broadcasts British Broadcasting Corporation.
