

A Philosophical Discourse

It is natural to feel victimized by philosophy. There is a persistent temptation to turn this subject into something more shallow than it is. It is an extremely difficult subject and no exception to the general rule that creative efforts are rarely successful. I do not feel equal to the problems treated under philosophy. They seem to me to require an order of intelligence wholly different from mine. Others who try to address the questions of philosophy will recognize this feeling.

About Me

NAME: MICHAEL HANNON LOCATION: TORONTO, ONTARIO, CANADA

But someday, in a stronger age than this decaying, self-doubting present, he must yet come to us, the redeeming man, of great love and contempt, the creative spirit whose compelling strength will not let him rest in any aloofness or any beyond, whose isolation is misunderstood by the people as if it were flight from reality - while it is only his absorption, immersion, penetration into reality, so that, when he one day emerges again, into the light, he may bring home the redemption of this reality. The antichrist and the antinihilist; this victor over God and nothingness - he must one day come.

A Defense of Incompatibilism: The Irreconcilability of Free Will and Determinism

Abstract

This essay examines our perceived capacity to consciously will certain actions. Several topics are explored, including (but not limited to) conscious will, moral responsibility, and mental causation. I begin by defining the abstract notion of "free will." What follows is an analysis of incompatibilism by way of elementary logic. My thesis is that incompatibilism is the only logical position one can uphold in regard to the free will debate. I then explore the two outcomes this position entails: libertarianism and hard determinism. Here, I intend to provide an expository account of both partial and complete determinism. I shall also refute the compatibilists attempt to reconcile free will with determinism. Throughout my discussion, I highlight our current use of determinism as an explanation of specific types of anomalous behavior. I conclude by addressing the consequences incompatibilism entails concerning the issue of moral responsibility.

A Defense of Incompatibilism

A leaf was riven from a tree.

"I mean to fall to the earth," said he.

The west wind rising made him veer.

"Eastward," he said, "I now shall steer."

Presocratic Reflexivity: The Construction of Philosophical Discourse c. 600-450 B.C. Barry Sandywell, 2002-11-01 In this third Volume of Logological Investigations Sandywell continues his sociological reconstruction of the origins of reflexive thought and discourse with special reference to pre Socratic philosophy and science and their socio political context The Journal of Philosophy, Psychology and Scientific Methods, 1917 Philosophy Nathan Rotenstreich, 2012-12-06 The present book is concerned with the nature of philosophy and with the scope of philosophical interest It combines an analysis of the major types of philosophical thinking as they emerged in the history of philosophical ideas with an attempt to examine problems which recurrently emerge in philosophical discourse It is from this point of view that the historical and the systematic approaches are meant to be mutually reinforcing I am grateful to my friends who helped me to formulate the line of thinking expressed in this book Z Bar On A Margalit E I I Poznanski Z Werblowsky and E Zemach Some years ago when I visited the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara Dr Robert M Hutchins encouraged me to write the present book I am dedicating the book to him not only because of that encouragement but more importantly because as an educational thinker Dr Hutchins represents the position which assigns to the great ideas of the past validity and value in the analysis of topical problems of the present The Journal of Philosophy, 1915 Covers topics in philosophy psychology and scientific methods Vols 31 include A Bibliography of philosophy 1933 The Art of Living John Sellars, 2013-11-20 Ancient philosophy was conceived as a way of life or an art of living but if ancient philosophers did think that philosophy should transform an individual's way of life then what conception of philosophy stands behind this claim John Sellars explores this question through a detailed account of ancient Stoic ideas about the nature and function of philosophy He considers the Socratic background to Stoic thinking about philosophy and Sceptical objections raised by Sextus Empiricus and offers readings of late Stoic texts by Epictetus and Marcus Aurelius Sellars argues that the conception of philosophy as an art of living inaugurated by Socrates and developed by the Stoics has persisted since antiquity and remains a living alternative to modern attempts to assimilate philosophy to the natural sciences It also enables us to rethink the relationship between an individual's philosophy and their biography The book appears here in paperback for the first time with a new Preface by the author The Distinction of Human Being Thomas Kruger Caplan, 2016-03-28 Perhaps we are never done with thought nor should be If this is indeed the case then Kant may have been right after all in supposing that folks will never lose interest in metaphysics in thought thinking thought But what of academics Where would we find these days a comprehensive treatment of pure reason of the epochs of its origins and accomplishments that is not just another collection of interpretations of source texts in translation This study introduces philosophy students and professionals to the logotectonic method of conception as developed by Heribert Boeder a pupil of Martin Heidegger which is broadly structuralist in its approach but endeavors to make evident how the principles of rationality governing the Occidental tradition of logos even those dictated by the animus
