Robert W. Karrow, 1981    Weirdest World Borders Jasper Holt, AI, 2025-03-31 Weirdest World Borders explores the fascinating and often bizarre world of international boundaries revealing how history politics and even geographical quirks have shaped the lines on our maps. It's more than just geography; it's a journey through the stories that explain how unusual frontiers came to be. For instance, many borders were drawn without considering existing ethnic or tribal distributions, a direct consequence of colonialism. Also, treaties and wars have significantly impacted border creation, leading to many odd situations we see today. The book examines key aspects of border creation and maintenance such as the legacy of colonialism, the impact of treaties and wars, and the everyday lives of people living in these regions. Understanding these topics is crucial for grasping the complexities of international relations and the human consequences of boundary making. It progresses by first presenting peculiar examples then delving into case studies grouped thematically like colonial partitions in Africa and Asia or European borders shaped by conflict. It offers a unique perspective by combining rigorous historical research with accessible storytelling, making it valuable to anyone interested in world history, travel, and the forces that shape our world.

Installation Master Plan Preparation, 1988    Forest Landscape Ecology Ajith H. Perera, Lisa J. Buse, Thomas Crow, 2007-03-14 Landscape ecology has generated a wealth of knowledge that could enhance forest policy but little of this knowledge has found its way into practice. This the first book to introduce landscape ecologists to the discipline of knowledge transfer. The book considers knowledge transfer in general, critically examines aspects that are unique to forest landscape ecology, and reviews case studies of successful applications for policy developers and forest managers in North America.
