

POST-LAB QUESTIONS:

1. You are given the following carbohydrates: arabinose, glucose, fructose, maltose, sucrose, and starch.
Explain the results described below.
 - a. A carbohydrate solution (from the list above) gave a positive Molisch test and negative Benedict's, Barfoed's, Bial's, and Seliwanoff's tests. When treated with hydrochloric acid and boiled for several minutes, the solution showed positive Benedict's, Barfoed's, and Seliwanoff's tests and a negative Bial's test. What carbohydrate was in the original solution?
- The carbohydrate in the original solution was Starch.
 - b. A solution (from the list above) containing only one carbohydrate gave a Cu_2O precipitate with Benedict's reagent. Which possible carbohydrates are present in the solution?
- The possible carbohydrates present in the solution are either glucose or fructose or maltose or arabinose.
 - c. To define more precisely which carbohydrate is present in the solution you analysed another sample of the same solution and it failed to give a Cu_2O precipitate with Barfoed's reagent after 5 min of boiling. Which carbohydrate is present in the solution?
- Maltose is present in the solution.
2. Describe how a solution of lactose would react toward these reagents.
 - a. Benedict's Test: Lactose is a reducing sugar that can react with Benedict's solution, which is used to detect the presence of aldehydes. Lactose contains a hemiacetal group that can open up to form a free aldehyde, which then reduces the copper (II) ions in Benedict's solution to copper(I) oxide, forming a brick-red or orange precipitate.
 - b. Barfoed's Test: Barfoed's reagent is used to distinguish between monosaccharides and disaccharides. A solution of lactose, being a reducing disaccharide composed of glucose and galactose, would react slowly with Barfoed's reagent to form a brick-red precipitate of copper (I) oxide.
 - c. Seliwanoff's Test: Seliwanoff's reagent is specific for detecting the presence of ketoses, such as fructose. Since lactose is a disaccharide with a ketose (fructose) and an aldose (galactose) component, it will not give a significant reaction with Seliwanoff's reagent. Seliwanoff's reagent contains resorcinol and hydrochloric acid, and when heated with a ketose sugar like fructose, it forms a cherry-red color within a short time. However, the reaction with lactose will be slower and less intense due to the aldose component (galactose).
3. What functional group(s) are present in the reducing carbohydrates?
Reducing carbohydrates contain one or more aldehyde (CHO) or ketone ($\text{C}=\text{O}$) functional groups. These functional groups are responsible for their reducing properties. In the case of aldoses, such as glucose and galactose, there is an aldehyde group present. In the case of ketoses, such as fructose, there is a ketone group present. These carbonyl groups have the ability to undergo oxidation-reduction reactions and can reduce other compounds, such as certain metal ions, resulting in the formation of colored precipitates or solutions in various chemical tests like Benedict's or Fehling's test.

Bettelheim, Joseph Marvin Landesberg, 1997 The Creation of Doctor B Richard Pollak, 1998-04-06 Demythologizing biography of world famous Vienna born psychoanalyst bestselling author and authority on troubled children Interpreting in Nazi Concentration Camps Michaela Wolf, 2016-07-28 This significant new study is concerned with the role of interpreting in Nazi concentration camps where prisoners were of 30 to 40 different nationalities. With German as the only official language in the lager communication was vital to the prisoners survival. While in the last few decades there has been extensive research on the language used by the camp inmates investigation into the mediating role of interpreters between SS guards and prisoners on the one hand and among inmates on the other has been almost nonexistent. On the basis of Primo Levi's considerations on communication in the Nazi concentrationary system this book investigates the ambivalent role of interpreting in the camps. One of the central questions is what the role of interpreting was in the wider context of shaping life in concentration camps. And in what way did the knowledge of languages and accordingly certain communication skills contribute to the survival of concentration camp inmates and of the interpreting person. The main sources under investigation are both archive materials and survivors memoirs and testimonials in various languages. On a different level Interpreting in Nazi Concentration Camps also asks in what way the study of communication in concentration camps enhances our understanding of the ambiguous role of interpreting in more general terms. And in what way does the study of interpreting in concentration camps shape an interpreting concept which can help us to better understand the violent nature of interpreting in contexts other than the Holocaust The Saturday Evening Post, 1964 Current Biography, 1962 Current Biography Yearbook, 1961 Atkinson's Evening Post and Philadelphia Saturday News, 1964-07-04 Current Biography; Who's News and why, 1962 UCLA Educator University of California, Los Angeles.
