The Basis of Practical Teaching Elmer Burritt Bryan,2017-09-17 Excerpt from The Basis of Practical Teaching A Book in Pedagogy There was a time when the branches taught seemed to be the center and end of education From this extreme view of the subject there has been a gradual transition toward the opposite view that the child is the center and end of education This is presumably the most advanced view generally held at the present time Yet while it is recognized that the child is the center and end Of education I think we are not resting upon this as an abstract or isolated thought As the transition from the first view to the second and opposite one has been slow and gradual so the present movement from the child as such to the child in his entire setting will be neither rapid nor always encouraging About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works through the lens of the Threshold Concepts Framework In any discipline there are certain concepts the jewels in the curriculum whose acquisition is akin to passing through a portal Learners enter new conceptual and often affective territory Previously inaccessible ways of thinking or practising come into view without which they cannot progress and which offer a transformed internal view of subject landscape or even world view These conceptual gateways are integrative exposing the previously hidden interrelatedness of ideas and are irreversible However they frequently present troublesome knowledge and are often points at which students become stuck Difficulty in understanding may leave the learner in a liminal state of transition a betwixt and between space of knowing and not knowing where understanding can approximate to a form of mimicry Learners navigating such spaces report a sense of uncertainty ambiguity paradox anxiety even chaos The liminal space may equally be one of awe and wonderment Thresholds research identifies these spaces as key transformational points crucial to the learner's development but where they can oscillate and remain for considerable periods These spaces require not only conceptual but ontological and discursive shifts This volume the fourth in a tetralogy on Threshold Concepts discusses student experiences and the curriculum interventions of their teachers in a range of disciplines and professional practices including medicine law engineering architecture and military education Cover image Detail from Eve offering the apple to Adam in the Garden of Eden and the serpent c 1520-25 Lucas Cranach the Elder 1472-1553 Bridgeman Images All rights reserved
