Blue Skies A History Of Cable Television:

Blue Skies Patrick Parsons, 2008-04-05 Cable television is arguably the dominant mass media technology in the U S today Blue Skies traces its history in detail depicting the important events and people that shaped its development from the precursors of cable TV in the 1920s and 30s to the first community antenna systems in the 1950s and from the creation of the national satellite distributed cable networks in the 1970s to the current incarnation of info structure that dominates our lives Author Patrick Parsons also considers the ways that economics public perception public policy entrepreneurial personalities the social construction of the possibilities of cable and simple chance all influenced the development of cable TV Since the 1960s one of the pervasive visions of cable has been of a ubiquitous flexible interactive communications system capable of providing news information entertainment diverse local programming and even social services That set of utopian hopes became known as the Blue Sky vision of cable television from which the book takes its title Thoroughly documented and carefully researched yet lively occasionally humorous and consistently insightful Blue Skies is the genealogy of our media society

The FCC and the Politics of Cable TV Regulation, 1952-1980 Michael J. Zarkin, 2010 While other studies have examined the history of cable television regulation none has fully explained why the FCC struggled to develop regulations during its formative years In this study Michael Zarkin helps fill this gap by providing such an explanation through an application of organizational learning theory Zarkin argues that in order for the FCC to formulate regulations for a brand new communications medium it first needed develop and effectively utilize the capacity to gather and analyze policy relevant knowledge By the 1970s conditions were ripe for this to happen and the FCC was able to more effectively revise its cable television policies This book elaborates and applies an organizational learning framework that contributes to our understanding of how regulatory agencies operate By employing a broad range of published and unpublished primary sources the book also succeeds in providing a more detailed and penetrating study of cable television than previous endeavors Rather than simply summarizing and critiquing policy decisions the book paints a picture of the people ideas and politics that shaped cable television regulation during these formative years The FCC and the Politics of Cable TV Regulation 1952 1980 will be of interest to scholars who study regulatory agencies the policy process and communications law and policy

Local TV Annie Laurie Sullivan, Lauren Herold, 2025-10-15 Local Television Histories Communities and Aesthetics offers critical analyses of an expansive range of practices policies and debates in local television histories from the United States Television is typically perceived as a commercial and or national form of communication with the potential to reach millions of viewers Yet from the earliest years of television through the present communities have participated in the production of television creating media relevant to their needs and concerns This collection broadens our notion of what this medium can achieve allowing for innovative representation and community use that disrupts the political economic national and social norms of mainstream offerings Rather than a comprehensive historical survey which given the sheer number of local television productions would be impossible we've curated methodologically distinctive chapters that assess the possibilities and limitations of television's mission to serve local publics In doing so we are attentive to the idiosyncratic histories technologies and functions of local television that have emerged in different cities over the course of the 20th and 21st Century We likewise amplify the use of television by marginalized groups whose perspectives are too often sidelined or distorted in mainstream fare as a site for community formation cultural expression civic engagement and political action

Televising Ancient Rome in the Twenty-First Century Lisa Maurice, 2025-10-31 Ever since HBO BBC's Rome burst onto screens in 2005 Rome has appeared on television screens in a variety of dramatic productions These utilise many of the elements of ancient Rome that were familiar to audiences from big screen epic movies but adapt them for a television genre in a manner that is characteristic of the the second millennium playing on older tropes and merging them with new formats Where do such tropes come from and how have they been developed over time specifically on the small screen a medium that overlaps with but is substantially different from the cinema How have the changes in technology and the manner in which television is consumed by audiences influenced the productions Answering these questions and more this book examines the presentation of ancient Rome in primarily British and American television productions of the twenty first century exploring not only how they depict the ancient world but how the various programmes reflect aspects and concerns of contemporary society in which they are produced Through a series of nine different case studies it considers three main issues the miniseries format as television epic sexuality and gender in contemporary ancient Rome productions and specific national contexts
