

Creating a Development Plan for your apprentice

This template is to help you as a line manager plan out the "on the job" development needed by your apprentice so they can standard.

It is split into 2 Tabs. The first Tab outlines the Duties of the apprenticeship (and shows how these map to the Knowledge, Skill and Competence standards). The second Tab is for you to identify the kinds of activities and tasks that you could get an apprentice to do over their apprenticeship in order to become competent.

Think about opportunities for the apprentice to:

- Research around the issues (e.g. can they read up on legislation and case studies);
- Observe others doing the task and ask them questions (e.g. through Shadowing team members)
- Practice the task (e.g. drafting letters or list descriptions)
- Apply this (e.g. writing full or sections of responses, list descriptions etc themselves)

Then think about when might be the most appropriate time for the apprentice to do this. Some things may have to come first and others may want them to repeat throughout the apprenticeship. Some things may have to take place at certain times due to restrictions (e.g. health and safety).

You will also want to think about who can help the apprentice undertake these tasks. Is it you, or should it be another member of the team? (You may want to discuss these at an early stage and ask for their input so you get buy in).

There is also a column to put in what pieces of evidence these activities/tasks may create which the apprentice can use in the portfolio.

Once you have completed this Tab, the second Tab should be drafted and then discussed with your apprentice.

This looks at programming in across a year when the apprentice will do specific tasks and activities; and who with. There is a list of other team members agreed to be involved at the specific date and do they know what their role is?). There is also a box to tick if the task is postponed. You may want to add additional details on this into the Notes section.

Finally there is a box to tick to note if evidence has been created by the apprentice; and also to see if they can get a witness to the task (e.g. a witness to the duty it relates to).

You should keep this as a live document and review it on a regular basis with your apprentice.
