Through Japanese Eyes Yohko Tsuji, 2020-11-13 In Through Japanese Eyes based on her thirty year research at a senior center in upstate New York anthropologist Yohko Tsuji describes old age in America from a cross cultural perspective Comparing aging in America and in her native Japan she discovers that notable differences in the panhuman experience of aging are rooted in cultural differences between these two countries and that Americans have strongly negative attitudes toward aging because it represents the antithesis of cherished American values especially independence Tsuji reveals that American culture despite its seeming lack of guidance for those aging plays a pivotal role in elders lives simultaneously assisting and constraining them Furthermore the author's lengthy period of research illustrates major changes in her interlocutors lives incorporating their declines and death and significant shifts in the culture of aging in American society as Tsuji herself gets to know American culture and grows into senescence herself Through Japanese Eyes offers an ethnography of aging in America from a cross cultural perspective based on a lengthy period of research It illustrates how older Americans cope with the gap between the ideal e.g. independence and the real e.g. needing assistance of growing older and the changes the author observed over thirty years of research American-Vietnamese Relations in the Wake of War Cécile Menétrey-Monchau, 2006-07-19 When the Vietnam War ended with the North Vietnamese capture of Saigon on April 30 1975 27 months after a cease fire had been signed in Paris the differences between the United States and Vietnam were far from being resolved Mutual bitterness regarding the war remained Newly unified Vietnam wanted normalization of relations and the subsequent economic reconstruction aid promised in the Paris Peace Accords Understandably wary of such diplomatic relations the United States requested information regarding soldiers listed as missing in action and assistance with the repatriation of military remains A series of misconceptions and misunderstandings as well as changes from a regional to a global U.S. foreign policy left both countries bereft of an easy solution This book describes the negotiations during the late Ford and early Carter administrations 1975-1979 and discusses the repercussions the diplomatic stalemate had on the domestic and international politics of the United States and Vietnam emphasizing the conflicting priorities and political goals of both countries at home and abroad This previously neglected period in United States-Vietnam relations deals with issues such as Hanoi's constant exultation over the victory American denial of responsibility the division between the presidents public declarations and congressional policies and both sides use of the MIA issue Based primarily on recently declassified documents and former U S official Douglas Pike s uncensored collection the work also makes use of media press sources from America Vietnam Britain France and China Interviews with Vietnamese immigrants and former U S politicians provide insight unavailable in written histories Appendices contain the February 1973 correspondence between President Nixon and the Prime Minister of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam six diplomatic notes from 1976 and a January 30 1979 letter from President Carter to Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping
