Before answering the questions below, refer to the AP FRQs section Related Resources to understand how your responses should be evaluated. Some questions will only be marked as Correct or Incorrect, while others will ask you to identify the Incorrect responses (multiple-choice answers).

(a) Based on the data in the graph, identify the habitat that has the greatest number of species.

- which response below would NOT earn the FRQ point?
  - primary forest
  - the habitat type with the greatest number of species are savanna, barrens, deserts, and grasslands
  - deserts and grasslands are the habitats with the most species counted
  - deserts, grasslands

(b) Based on the data in the graph, describe the relationship between the total numbers observed in savanna and without indigenous populations.

- which response below would earn the FRQ point?
  - indigenous populations are present, and total populations are fluctuate based on habitat but are overall maintained compared to savanna without the indigenous
  - as the number of indigenous populations rise, total populations increase as well, rather than decrease and vice versa
  - The relationship between the total numbers observed in the savanna is that they both rise and fall at the same time
  - The difference observed between savanna with indigenous present and savanna, indigenous but there is a direct correlation with total population. The population decreases of savanna when indigenous are present within their habitat

(c) Based on the theory of island biogeography, describe the characteristics of an island with the greatest species diversity.

  - Montane regions represent lower the greatest species diversity. This means, there is more of a variety of species and there is less biogeography in this environment
  - A large island, closer to the mainland and ample precipitation and not too well suited for high species diversity
  - Based on the theory of island biogeography, the island with the greatest species diversity is an island closer to continents and larger in size. An island closer to continents is more likely that it has more
  - An island with the greatest species diversity would be both large and closer to a larger body of land. It would also have several different habitats

(d) Describe one environmental problem caused by invasive species.

  - invasive species are harmful to the ecosystem and can reduce a native population which will be forced them off balance
  - An invasive species may fill the niche niche in a native species, competitor with it, and replace the native species. Meaning the relationship, the native species had lost its balance, reducing total native species count
  - One environmental problem caused by invasive species is that it replaces native species. An invasive species may be a species that is not native to the area. This is because invasive species refers to, the first invasive species that is replacing native species refers to, the first invasive species that is not native to the area. In that invasive species can dominate resources that native species need
