The Crash of American Eagle Flight 4184 Robert A. Mauck,1995      Unheeded Warning Stephen A. Fredrick,1996
When the crash occurred Stephen A Fredrick himself an American Eagle pilot could not remain silent Fredrick knew three of the four crew members on Flight 4184 and had once experienced a close call while piloting an ATR on an icy day In this riveting account he tells the technical and human story of Flight 4184 for the first time      Aircraft Accident Report ,197?

The Folly of Fools Robert Trivers,2011-10-25 Whether it s in a cockpit at takeoff or the planning of an offensive war a romantic relationship or a dispute at the office there are many opportunities to lie and self deceive but deceit and self deception carry the costs of being alienated from reality and can lead to disaster So why does deception play such a prominent role in our everyday lives In short why do we deceive In his bold new work prominent biological theorist Robert Trivers unflinchingly argues that self deception evolved in the service of deceit the better to fool others We do it for biological reasons in order to help us survive and procreate From viruses mimicking host behavior to humans misremembering sometimes intentionally the details of a quarrel science has proven that the deceptive one can always outwit the masses But we undertake this deception at our own peril Trivers has written an ambitious investigation into the evolutionary logic of lying and the costs of leaving it unchecked      The Case for International Sharing of Scientific Data
National Research Council,Policy and Global Affairs,Board on Research Data and Information,Board on International Scientific Organizations,Committee on the Case of International Sharing of Scientific Data: A Focus on Developing Countries,2013-01-11 The theme of this international symposium is the promotion of greater sharing of scientific data for the benefit of research and broader development particularly in the developing world This is an extraordinarily important topic Indeed I have devoted much of my own career to matters related to the concept of openness I had the opportunity to promote and help build the open courseware program at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology MIT This program has made the teaching materials for all 2 000 subjects taught at MIT available on the Web for anyone anywhere to use anytime at no cost In countries where basic broadband was not available we shipped it in on hard drives and compact disks Its impact has been worldwide but it has surely had the greatest impact on the developing world I am also a trustee of a nonprofit organization named Ithaca that operates Journal Storage JSTOR and other entities that make scholarly information available at very low cost The culture of science has been international and open for centuries Indeed the scientific enterprise can only work when all information is open and accessible because science works through critical analysis and replication of results In recent years as some scientific data and especially technological data have increased in economic value frequently has caused us to be far less open with information than business and free enterprise require us to be Indeed the worldwide shift to what is known as open innovation is strengthening every day Finally since the end of World War II the realities of modern military conflict and now terrorism have led governments to restrict information through classification This is important but I believe that we classify far too much information The last thing we need today at the beginning of the twenty first century is further arbitrary limitations on the free flow of scientific information whether by policies established by governments and businesses or by lack of information infrastructure For all these reasons the international sharing of scientific data is one of the topics of great interest here at the National Academies and has been the subject of many of our past reports This is the primary reason why this symposium has been co organized by the NRC s Policy and Global Affairs Division the Board on International Scientific Organizations BISO and the Board on Research Data and Information BRDI The Case for International Sharing of Scientific Data A Focus on Developing Countries Proceedings of a Symposium summarizes the symposium Crisis
