

AIM: TO CREATE AUTOMOTIVE DOOR TRIM PANEL AND ENGINEERING FEATURES.

OBJECTIVE :

- To perform Draft analysis on given Class-A surface.
- To create Class-B and Class-C surface to Create thickened body of Door Panel.
- To create engineering features like DogHouse, Push pin, Flanges, heat Stake, Locators, Ribs.
- To perform Draft analysis on the complete Door Trim Panel.

INTRODUCTION:

DOOR TRIM PANEL:

It is an interior plastic part having engineering attachment features to engage with exterior sheet metal Door panel. In this project we have a Class-A surface of door trim panel, which includes Map pocket, Lower Substrate, Bottle Holder, and Arm Rest. So my first motto is that to perform a Draft analysis on every Class-A surface to check its Draft angle. After that create Class-B and Class-C for creating complete close body. After creating thickened part create Attachment features like DogHouse, Push Pin, Flanges, Heat Stake, Locators, and Ribs.

Automotive Door Trim Design Guidelines:

Ergonomics in the Automotive Design Process Vivek D. Bhise, 2016-04-19 The auto industry is facing tough competition and severe economic constraints. Their products need to be designed right the first time with the right combinations of features that not only satisfy the customers but continually please and delight them by providing increased functionality, comfort, convenience, safety, and craftsmanship. Based on the An Index of U.S. Voluntary Engineering Standards, Supplement 1 William J. Slattery, 1972

Advances in Occupational Ergonomics and Safety Shrawan Kumar, 1998 Ergonomics touches every man, woman, and child each day of their lives whether they recognise it or not. Ergonomics or lack of it plays a more significant role in the lives of about two thirds of the world's population over 10 years of age who work for one third of their lives to make a living. There are 120 million occupational accidents and injuries and 200 000 fatalities each year according to WHO. 95% of occupational accidents, injuries, and fatalities are undesired events. The occupational activities are planned and designed and executed with a purpose under supervision but accidents are not. Hence it stands to reason that better planning, design, and execution will help to reduce these undesirable outcomes. One must also recognise that under the global scheme of biological evolution the human beings were not designed to endure a life long exposure to artificial activities repetitively. Thus, occupational health problems are inevitable if we do not return to nature for our sustenance. As a society we have chosen to live and work as we do. In fact there is a far rapid evolution, mutation, and speciation of occupations than of any biological organism. This places us in a situation where better planning, design, and execution of our occupational activities have become absolute necessity. However, since ergonomics is a modifier and not a causal factor its significance does not become immediately apparent to us. Perhaps it is for this reason that even in developed world occupational health services are available to between 20% to 50% of the work force and less than 10% of the workforce in the developing countries. Occupational health services are remedial approaches. The rational wisdom of the human race should strive to get proactive control of undesirable outcomes through ergonomics. Unfortunately it is sadly lacking even today. On an optimistic note one can observe that its presence and application is slowly increasing.

An Index of U.S. Voluntary Engineering Standards William J. Slattery, 1972 Concurrent Engineering Andrew Kusiak, 1993-01-12 Presents a top down approach to the design, development, testing, and recyclability of products, components, and systems across a wide range of industries. Starting with the desired result and working back through the details it shows how to produce goods taking into account the challenges of actual manufacture what the reliability requirements should be, quality control, associated costs, customer needs, and more. Additional features include case studies and team negotiating. Also well illustrated with figures, photographs, charts, and tables and includes an extensive bibliography.
