Transportation U S Government Accountability Office (G.U. S. Government Accountability Office (,2013-06 As part of their plan to form an international alliance American Airlines AA and British Airways BA have sought immunity from antitrust laws in the United States and Europe The extent to which the alliance might come to dominate the routes between major U S cities and London will depend on whether other airlines are able to enter this market under an open skies agreement Some passengers may benefit from the larger network created by an AA BA alliance but GAO believes that the overall benefits of such an alliance may be limited for several reasons First continuing constraints in slots gates and terminal facilities at London s Heathrow Airport and BA s corporate strategy for reducing its overall capacity would limit potential benefits Second several carriers are already serving many of the markets that the AA BA alliance plans to serve Third neither AA nor BA claim that the alliance would generate substantial operational savings that could be passed on to stockholders employees and customers A full review of the competitive effects of this and other alliances is needed because GAO s analysis suggests that a grant of antitrust immunity could enable the alliance to enhance its market power on some routes The United States and the United Kingdom may have different interests in expediting a bilateral open skies agreement and a decision on the alliance    The Official Index to the Financial Times ,2003    American Aviation Daily ,1955    Predicasts F & S Index United States Predicasts, inc,1991 A comprehensive index to company and industry information in business journals    F & S Index United States ,1997    Asian Business ,2000    Proceedings of the ...
