

IMPERIALISM, WAR AND TERRORISM OF STATE

Fernando Alcaforado*

Terrorism is used by organizations as a means to an end. Terrorism differs from guerrilla warfare in terms of the targets to be reached in its actions. While the guerrillas choose military targets, the opposing forces, their logistics, ammunition depots, terrorism seeks to indiscriminately target civilian and military targets. Terrorism seeks not only selective attack but also mass attack. A terrorist movement may, depending on the correlation of forces, use simultaneously or separately terrorism, guerrilla warfare and classic military operations provided it has sufficient capacity. This is the case with al Qaeda and the so-called Islamic State that emerged in the Middle East.

Terrorist action has always been seen in the past in a revolutionary context. The most common purpose of terrorism in the past was to cause a state of fear in government or loss of confidence by specific sectors of the population supporting it. Terrorism is often the last resort of the desperate, and can be used by large or small organizations. Terrorism depends heavily on surprise and often occurs when and where it is least expected. In the past, terrorism avoided killing and injuring women, children, and the elderly or other innocents. Nowadays, terrorism no longer delimits those who will be hit or not by their actions. The term terrorism came to be more widely used in history from 1793 in Robespierre's France during the regime of the Terror of the French Revolution.

In an article published in Revista Espaço Acadêmico, no. 51, August 2005, under the title A guerrilha do terrorismo e suas raízes históricas (The issue of terrorism and its historical roots), Lejane Mato Grosso Xavier de Carvalho, Unesp Foundation sociologist, professor at Unimep, member of the Lisbon Academy of High Studies and member of International Sociological Association states that one can roughly classify the actions that one calls "terrorism" into four types: 1) religious and fundamentalist terror (in the case of extremist Muslims, Christians and Jews who often make their bodies a weapon of war); 2) those of the mercenary type (those whose interest is the money); 3) the nationalists (such as the Irish Republican Army - IRA in Ireland and ETA in the Basque country); and 4) the ideological ones, whether they are leftists who fight for social or right-wing changes aimed at maintaining the status quo.

Another form of terrorism not mentioned by Lejane Mato Grosso Xavier de Carvalho is state terrorism. Modernly, the term state terrorism emerged during the Cold War to designate Operation Condor, which was a strategy of repression common to the dictatorial governments of South America in the 1970s, to confront the far left movements, notably in Brazil, in the Chile and Argentina. The term state terrorism has become common in the denunciation of repressive practices by the secret services that have resulted in murder, torture, censorship of the media, and utilization at last a series of state-based violence similar to those employed in terrorism. Despite having the same consequences but being quite different in methods, political repression in dictatorial states is often associated with terrorism, such as Terror during the Robespierre French Revolution, repression in Nazi Germany-occupied Europe and dictatorships in America, Latin America in the 1960s and 1970s, among other exception regimes worldwide.

The world is currently experiencing two types of globalized terrorism: 1) the terrorism practiced by the great imperialist powers, especially by the ruling sectors of the United

The New American Imperialism Vassilis Fouskas, Bülent Gökay, 2005-10-30 With the terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 the United States long war on communism was replaced by a perpetual war on terror The authors posit that this neo imperialistic phase is but the latest development in a line of thought and action established after World War II But they say 2005 is not 1945 Today they argue the United States uses its power to deplete the resources of the developing world and to compel the rest of the world to remain dependent on American management of the global economy Contending that this situation is ultimately untenable they assert that the United States is entering a period of deep crisis The best thing for American neo imperialists to do to avert their worst nightmare a strategic and economic alliance among Europe Russia China and OPEC would be to arrange for the orderly withdrawal of American power before it is too late for the human and environmental security of the world When the Soviet Union collapsed in 1991 the Cold War slowly gave way to a new world order in which the United States was left as the lone superpower But the organizing principle that would characterize the early 21st century was as yet unclear until the terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 Now it is clear that the long war on Communism has been replaced by a perpetual war on terror Regardless of how long American troops remain in Iraq and irrespective of further military actions George W Bush will continue to be a wartime president whose foreign policy is dominated by the Pentagon And yet the authors argue this neo imperialistic phase with its emphasis on Eurasian oil supplies is but the latest development in a line of thinking and acting in the world that was established by such men as Dean Acheson and Paul Nitze after World War II But 2005 is not 1945 and the United States despite Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld and Vice President Dick Cheney s assertions is not liberating Iraq and Afghanistan in the same way that U S forces liberated Germany and Japan it is not reconstructing Iraq or the former Yugoslavia as it did when it rebuilt war torn western Europe with the Marshall Plan The United States with its thinly stretched military and deficit laden economy does not possess the means to do so today Instead the authors maintain the United States is simply depleting the developing world s natural resources compelling the rest of the developed world to remain dependent on American management of the global economy This situation is ultimately untenable the authors argue and as a result the United States is entering a period of deep crisis The best thing for American neo imperialists to do to avert their worst nightmare a strategic and economic alliance among Europe Russia China and OPEC would be to arrange for the orderly withdrawal of American power before it is too late for the human and environmental security of the world as a whole Terror, Imperialism, and War ,2002 The Enemy of My Enemy George Michael,2006 In the violent world of radical extremists the enemy of my enemy is my friend This study reveals how that precept plays out in the unexpected bonding between militant Islam and the extreme right in America and Europe It provides an insightful and sane look at the possibilities for collaboration between these groups Is Theory Good for the Jews? Bruno Chaouat,2016 By looking back to the emergence of a postwar theoretical discourse on trauma memory victims suffering the Holocaust and the Jews Is Theory Good for the Jews explores how French thought is implicated in intellectual literary and ideological components of the global and local upsurge of antisemitism A Futurist's Guide to Emergency Management Adam S.
