The Cognitive Artifacts of Designing Willemien Visser, 2006-08-08 In this dynamic review and synthesis of empirical research and theoretical discussion of design as cognitive activity Willemien Visser reconciles and integrates the classical view of design as conceptualized by Herbert Simon's symbolic information processing approach with modern views of design such as the situativity approach as formulated by Donald Schon The author goes on to develop her own view on design in which design is most appropriately characterized as a construction of representations She lays the groundwork for the integration of design research and cognitive science This seemingly simple framework has implications that set the stage for this mutually beneficial integration Proceedings of the CIRP Seminars on Manufacturing Systems, 1983

Safety of Computer Architectures Jean-Louis Boulanger, 2013-01-09 It is currently quite easy for students or designers engineers to find very general books on the various aspects of safety reliability and dependability of computer system architectures and partial treatments of the elements that comprise an effective system architecture It is not so easy to find a single source reference for all these aspects of system design However the purpose of this book is to present in a single volume a full description of all the constraints including legal contexts around performance reliability norms etc and examples of architectures from various fields of application including railways aeronautics space automobile and industrial automation The content of the book is drawn from the experience of numerous people who are deeply immersed in the design and delivery from conception to test and validation safety analysis of safety FMEA HA etc and evaluation of critical systems The involvement of real world industrial applications is handled in such a way as to avoid problems of confidentiality and thus allows for the inclusion of new useful information photos architecture plans schematics real examples
