Interests And Integration Market Liberalization Public Opinion And European Union:

Interests and Integration ,2009 Integration in Europe has been a slow incremental process focusing largely on economic matters Policy makers have tried to develop greater support for the European Union by such steps as creating pan European political institutions Yet significant opposition remains to policies such as the creation of a single currency What explains continued support for the European Union as well as opposition among some to the loss of national control on some questions Has the incremental process of integration and the development of institutions and symbols of a united Europe transformed public attitudes towards the European Union In this book Matthew Gabel probes the attitudes of the citizens of Europe toward the European Union He argues that differences in attitudes toward integration are grounded in the different perceptions of how economic integration will affect individuals economic welfare and how perceptions of economic welfare effect political attitudes Basing his argument on Easton s idea that where affective support for institutions is low citizens will base their support for institutions on their utilitarian appraisal of how well the institutions work for them Gabel contends that in the European Union citizens appraisal of the impact of the Union on their individual welfare is crucial because their affective support is quite low This book will be of interest to scholars studying European integration as well as scholars interested in the impact of public opinion on economic policymaking Matthew Gabel is Assistant Professor of Political Science University of Kentucky

European Union beyond the Crisis Boyka M Stefanova,2014-11-14 This volume explores institutional and policy developments in the EU and its member states in a parallel examination of citizens views of the effectiveness of crisis response reflected in public trust output legitimacy and satisfaction with democracy Our approach to understanding the crisis posits EU level governance and institutional change national level policymaking and domestic politics as interrelated interdependent domains of political action and public spheres that collectively shape the political landscape of post crisis Europe The volume sheds new light on the relationship among the institutional policy and polity consequences of the crisis The book has two fundamental aims The first is to demonstrate the interconnected nature of European governance domestic reform and democratic politics The unprecedented complexity of the financial sovereign debt economic and social crises in Europe has led to a political crisis that reflects the struggle to effectively address its various causes and effects The second objective is to present a theoretically informed assessment of the consequences of the European crises for state society relations and democratic legitimacy Our analysis of the crisis in a variety of national contexts and European governance highlights the difficulties faced by political decision makers We find that the domestic policy process is selectively affected or disconnected from the process of rule making at the EU level that public opinion still matters in the process of policy formation and EU crisis response and that the salience of the EU agenda in the domestic public sphere increasingly depends on the preferences of political actors Public response to the crisis has become increasingly complex as well ranging from declining trust in the political institutions emerging national stereotypes changing expectations of the EU level of crisis response growing disconnect between political parties and voters and evolving intra regional distinctions across the EU s east west divide Coping with Crisis: Europe's Challenges and Strategies Jale Tosun,Anne Wetzel,Galina
