Dr. James McPherson
discusses current and future trends

Dr. James McPherson is the Executive Director of the National Center for Children, Youth, & Families, a research and policy organization at the University of Maryland.

As the nation's largest and oldest child abuse prevention organization, the National Center for Child Abuse and Neglect (NCCAN) has been a leading voice in the field of child abuse and neglect for over 30 years. NCCAN's mission is to prevent child abuse and neglect, and to provide support and resources for children and families who have experienced abuse or neglect. NCCAN's work is focused on three main areas: prevention, response, and recovery. NCCAN's prevention efforts include developing and disseminating research-based information on child abuse and neglect, and providing technical assistance to state child abuse and neglect agencies. NCCAN's response efforts include providing support and resources to state child abuse and neglect agencies, and providing support and resources to children and families who have experienced abuse or neglect. NCCAN's recovery efforts include providing support and resources to children and families who have experienced abuse or neglect, and providing support and resources to state child abuse and neglect agencies.
