Finding List of Books Except Fiction Denver Public Library, 1903 Black American English Maritta Schwartz, 2002-06-25 Seminar paper from the year 1998 in the subject American Studies Linguistics grade 1 A Ruhr University of Bochum English Seminar course Seminar Introduction to African American Literature language English abstract Introduction In this essay we are going to deal with Black American English and its specific features and differences to Standard English The analysis includes an introduction to the grammar of BAE its specific vocabulary the African elements in BAE and the ethnographic speech behaviour connected with the use of BAE At the beginning a short survey will be given on who actually speaks BAE 1 Who speaks Black American English In general we can say that all those speak BAE Black American English who consider themselves to be Black Those are 80% of the Black American population But also some Puerto Ricans and members of the southern plantation owning class do use this language In former times BAE was also used by some Indian tribes and Seminoles The dialect patterns depend on social factors rather than racial or geographic Many people are capable of several dialects and also some Whites do speak those dialects The history of the Afro American languages correlates with a caste system The use of BAE indicates a low level of education as well as a low social standard It indicates that the speaker belongs to a social group that has remained unassimilated to the white culture Rich black families tend to speak Standard English In the use of Standard English among Blacks agegrading plays a great role First the children adopt the language they learn in their peer groups later on they learn Standard English in school The age grading towards Standard English is closely connected with status grading i e children of families with a higher social level tend to the use of Standard English The higher a Black climbs on the social ladder the more he tends to Standard English In general women find it easier to affiliate with the middle class and to adopt the white culture standards But the use of BAE is also an indicator of racial awareness and identity And even highly educated Blacks want to express their roots linguistically to show their identification They do so by the use of ethnic slang which they use even if they detest the grammar and phonology of BAE 1 1 the subject English Language and Literature Studies Linguistics grade 1 3 University of Heidelberg language English abstract This essay shall introduce the reader to African American English AAE This term is used in this text for a wide range of language varieties used by Black people in the United States of America That means that AAE is to be regarded as a dialect of this ethnic group and not as an independent language While most speakers of this variety 80 to 90 percent use some form of African American Vernacular English AAVE there are some areas where parts of the Black population speak a semi creole like Gullah which is spoken in rural areas of South Carolina and Georgia This text however will only deal with AAE in general starting with the development of this variety After that the main and most wide spread linguistic features will be discussed The essay will end with the description of recent issues concerning AAE and Afro American culture in U S society as a conclusion Phonological Characteristics of American English Dominik Borner, Eva Neubert, 2005-04-23 Seminar

General American GA which is widely used and preferred by most linguists today will be introduced and worked with General American can be seen as the Standard English of North America but in contrast to Received Pronunciation it is not defined by social reputation or a specific geographical origin Throughout the United States one can not really find a socially preferred accent that is commonly recognized as the standard pronunciation There have been several different approaches to defining a Standard English for the USA and in this paper General American will be used in means of a range of accents that do not exhibit any of the North Eastern or Southern features which are perceived as regional by the majority of American speakers One has to keep in mind that GA is not a single and totally homogeneous accent But since its internal variation is mainly a matter of differences in the phonetic realizations of a system of phonemes that is by and large shared by all GA speakers the generalization expressed in the notion General American is useful in phonological terms

The German Influence on Australian and American English

Lars-Benja Braasch,2009-03-24 Seminar paper from the year 2008 in the subject Speech Science Linguistics grade 2 0 University of Constance language English abstract The aim of this work will be on the one hand to describe the history of German settlement on both continents and more importantly of the influence of German on American English as well as on Australian English On the other hand a direct comparison between the German influences will be made and hopefully it will prove that even though half the globe separates both continents from each other there are similarities to be found It is to be expected though that if there are analogies they will be regionally restricted since both in the United States and in Australia contact situations seem to be restricted to those areas where Germans settled from the earliest days on Beside the clarification of some general definitions which will prove necessary for an understandable analysis the difficulties in researching this topic will be made evident One thing that will not be considered in this examination is the influence of Yiddish German on American English since one the one hand it proves hard to differentiate exactly between the German and the Yiddish aspects and on the other hand because the Jewish impact on Australian English is marginal

Therefore Yiddish German is rather unimportant in the comparison of both varieties

Concord with collective nouns in British and American English

Eleni Papadopoulou,2005-03-27 Seminar paper from the year 2004 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Linguistics grade 1 University of Sheffield course An Introduction to Corpus Linguistics language English abstract 1 Introduction The main and most important part of this term paper is based upon a personal corpus based study which should from the start be clearly characterized as relatively restrictive and not quite large in size in order to avoid any further problems and misunderstandings This study I mentioned above concerns and tries to closely examine the phenomenon of collective nouns and to be more specific we will try to examine the concord with collective nouns in both British and American English of the 1990 s always with the hidden desire to finally come with a reasonable conclusion towards the end of the paper In order to succeed in this procedure we will first try to give some short definitions of the most basic notions which are used in the following pages Then we will proceed in describing the corpora as well as the methodology used Moreover we will point out the problems that automatically arise from the fact of defining the collective nouns themselves on the one hand and of this corpus based study as a whole on the other hand After making these essential things clear we will become more familiar with the theories regarding this subject theories and theses that already exist they have already been uttered and can be found in various books of grammar of the English language Later on we will reveal and present the overall frequencies that derived from studying the corpora representing British and American English always in terms of concord with collective nouns These frequencies will consist the exact findings of the study regarding the percentages of collective nouns which can be treated either as singulars or plurals In addition exploiting those findings a comparison should be made amongst the prevailing past theories and our findings from the corpora Finally we will discuss potential topics for further studies on this subject as well as the importance of the results of the study Linguistic and Non-Linguistic Knowledge for L2 Listening Comprehension Dr. Ramli, S.S., M.Pd., American History ,2001-04
