Accelerated Reader S:

The Use of Accelerated Reader with Emergent Readers Meghan Cuddeback, State University College at Buffalo. Department of Elementary Education and Reading, 2000 Buffalo State College Master's project in Elementary Education and Reading 2000    Using Accelerated Reader to Measure the Amount of Reading with Reading Growth Wendy S. Strang, 2012 The purpose of this research is to determine a level of correlation between the use of accelerated reader and the amount of reading growth of a student in one school year. Research conducted on a 4th and 5th grade combination class of high achieving students was the sample of this research. To determine the level of correlation STAR assessment was used and comparison was made to beginning and end results. Growth was measured in two areas independent reading level and Grade level equivalency. In this research the average grade level equivalency growth exceeded one year as well as the independent reading level exceeded one level. The amount of words read by individual students was also recorded by Accelerated Reader and compared to the growth made in the school year. A degree of growth was recorded in all students sampled and varied as compared to the amount of words read in the school year.    Using the Accelerated Reader to Motivate Students to Become Lifelong Readers Lisa A. Luper, 2001    Accelerated Reader Beth D. Watts, 2004    Toward a 21st-Century School Library Media Program Esther Rosenfeld, David V. Hohman, 2009    Motivating Male Readers Through Accelerated Reader Kyle Kahl (M.S.), 2014    Improving Reading Comprehension of Self-Chosen Books Through Computer Assessment and Feedback Keith James Topping, 2022-07-12 Schools around the world use online programs like Accelerated Reader and Reading Counts to improve students reading comprehension of real books but how can such software be used most effectively? In this unique resource researcher Keith Topping analyzes independent research studies and brings you best practices on quality implementation to enhance effectiveness. He explains the evidence base for the programs in a comprehensible way and addresses many common questions such as Does it work? How should it be implemented to make it work? and Is it cheaper and more efficient in teacher time than what we were doing before? He also discusses best practices for using the assessment data for tailoring implementation in elementary vs high schools and for working with disadvantaged students. Appropriate for teachers, literacy coaches, curriculum leaders, and other stakeholders the book will provide you with a strong research foundation and easily accessible information to help you fine tune your understanding of the reading programs and implement them more successfully in your schools and classrooms.    Advanced Readers and the Accelerated Reader Program H. Rewarding Your Accelerated Readers Keith Kyker, 2014-07-03 Rewarding Your Accelerated Readers is your ready made blueprint for a dynamic reading rewards program that honors students who make a commitment to improving their reading skills through reading practice Every student in the school from the most accomplished reader to the student with emerging skills has the opportunity to earn meaningful awards and receive recognition as an individual and as part of a group Many schools use quiz based software programs including Accelerated Reader and Scholastic Reading Counts to manage their students leisure reading progress Students take brief quizzes about the books that they read and amass points throughout the school year As a way of encouraging reading practice and program participation schools typically offer prizes for students who earn points Some schools pass out candy bars and potato chips to students who pass quizzes Other schools offer big ticket items such as iPods and video games to the students with the highest point totals Sometimes the school principal will dye her hair blue wear a silly outfit or allow students to throw water balloons at her if the school earns a certain number of points These rewards often leave educators and parents scratching their heads Can t we come up more appropriate ways to recognize students Aren t we really just bribing them to read Rewarding Your Accelerated Readers is a complete plan designed to bring honor and prestige to students who develop their reading skills Gone are the candy bars and dollar store trinkets Instead students earn recognition for reading practice and are presented with tangible rewards to commemorate their achievements The program described in Rewarding Your Accelerated Readers gives every student in the school the opportunity to be recognized and rewarded for their reading practice efforts Some rewards programs recognize only the highest achievers creating one winner and dozens of losers In this positive reinforcement system every student has the opportunity to reach a level of achievement Topics include Guidelines for a Reading Rewards Program Rewards for All Students The Four part Reward System The Four Part Rewards System Working Together Answering Reading Rewards Program Questions Media Center Organization Rewarding Your Accelerated Readers contains more than 100 pages of information useful to library media specialists principals and teachers After reading this book you will be ready to implement this school proven program in your school From the author Several years ago as an elementary school library media specialist I was challenged to design a reading rewards program that encouraged all of our students to read I knew that we had to go beyond edible rewards and crazy school stunts I wanted to build a culture of reading at our school We had to establish reading as an honorable endeavor not just a way to get a prize or a quick snack With the help of some great teachers paraprofessionals and parents I designed the rewards system described in this book Using this system you ll give students at every grade level with every reading ability the opportunity to be recognized as an individual and as a member of a group This is a program that you as a professional can be proud of This is the program that your students deserve
