How Free Trade Agreements and Customs Unions Differ?

Both free trade agreements and customs unions are trade agreements between trading nations. In a free trade agreement, member nations agree to remove trade barriers, such as tariffs and quotas, between them. In a customs union, member nations agree to remove all trade barriers among themselves. They also agree to set a common external tariff on imports from non-member nations.

What is NAFTA?

The North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) is a trade agreement signed by Mexico, Canada, and the United States. It was signed in 1994 and entered into force in 1994. It is a free trade agreement that removes trade barriers between the three countries. It also sets a common external tariff on imports from non-member nations. The agreement has been a success for all three countries. It has increased trade and economic growth in all three countries. It has also helped to reduce poverty in all three countries. The agreement is a model for other trade agreements.

Leaders signed the North American Free Trade Agreement in 1994.
