Transnational Influences on NGO Development in Russia Lisa McIntosh Sundstrom,2001 Media, Culture and Society in Putin's Russia Stephen White,2008-04-09 This is an international collection of papers focused on media culture and society in post communist Russia Given the heightened interest fear in the Putin administration this book should reach a broad and interested audience Several of the chapters are based on field research and present solid empirical evidence to support arguments developed by the authors A timely set of contributions give current debates the viability of the existence of civil society and media freedom under the Putin presidency The contributors deploy a wealth of primary data in examining the kinds of issues that are central to our understanding of the kind of system that has been established in the world s largest country after a period of far reaching change The Heart and Soul of the Party Magnus Öhman,2004 This is a Ph D dissertation Although most countries south of the Sahara introduced multiparty systems more than a decade ago much remains to be understood about the political parties active within these systems General statements about African parties are common but tend to lack support from systematic research Among the least studied areas is African party organization including such issues as how parties function and who decides what One useful way of studying the power dynamics within political parties is to analyze how parliamentary candidates are selected While a common theme in party research in established democracies this is the first systematic study of the subject in Africa This book analyzes the selection system used in recent elections in 31 parties in 17 African countries while a closer study of Ghana offers more detailed information It is found that the selection process in many political parties is significantly more decentralized than general theories about African parties would suggest In sharp contrast to arguments about the stability of African elites incumbent Members of Parliament are often very vulnerable to challenges from other aspirants in their parties It is argued that the logic of clientelism plays an important role in explaining these findings Studia Universitatis Babeş-Bolyai, 2008 African Democracies and African Politics M.A. Mohamed Salih, 2001-08-20 Challenging orthodox views on contemporary African politics and democracy M A Mohamed Salih offers a fresh approach to the topic emphasising the role of ethnicity and religion in particular that of minorities His central theme is that government donors from Western nations have imposed Western style democracy in Africa ignoring the indigenous politics of the region often resulting in chaos As a consequence many African societies are divided by ethnicity Revealing how minorities are inevitably marginalised in all aspects of development and education Salih shows how in many instances they are treated as enemies of the state as are the opposition parties He examines democracy and authoritarian development in a pan African context and the democratic potential of political education and provides a range of country specific case studies including multi party democracy in Sudan democratising anarchy in Sierra Leone religious violence in Obasanjo's Nigeria and ethnic federalism in Ethiopia Comparative Foreign Policy Steven W. Hook, 2002 This volume is intended as a core text for courses in comparative foreign policy and a supplementary text for courses in introduction to world politics comparative politics and graduate seminars in foreign policy analysis Thinking the Unthinkable Branka Andjelković, 2003 The challenges of constructing effective governance systems in Central and South Eastern Europe during the past decade have been extensive This publication looks at the linkages between these challenges and the experiences and best practices that have emerged as well as the contributions of think tanks to government capacity It is divided into three sections The first part reviews a number of tools that can be used to stimulate a more institutionalized strategic thinking process in governments using both the available capacities inside government structures and the inputs by civil society organizations The second part reflects on the strengths and weaknesses of civil society organizations and think tanks as providers of inputs to policy makers In its third and final part the publication includes a case study of the application of Early Warning System as a specific tool to bring together government and civil society capacities in the context of South Eastern Europe No Entry Without Strategy Carolyn Gardner Bull, 2008 For international actors seeking to consolidate peace and democracy in disrupted states the importance of establishing the rule of law is now well recognized UN peace operations have struggled to ensure lasting security against violence and to build legitimate structures to redress disputes peacefully UN actors have confronted a fundamental dilemma if embedding the rule of law rests on complex political and social transformations regarding conflict power and the state can external actors make a difference The book investigates the challenges faced by UN transitional administrations in establishing the rule of law in Cambodia Kosovo and East Timor In so doing it explores conceptual understandings of the UN's state building agenda and speaks to broader questions about the role of external actors in disrupted states Publisher's description Open Networks. Closed Regimes Shanthi Kalathil, Taylor C. Boas, 2003 As the Internet diffuses across the globe many have come to believe that the technology poses an insurmountable threat to authoritarian rule Grounded in the Internet's early libertarian culture and predicated on anecdotes pulled from diverse political climates this conventional wisdom has informed the views of policymakers business leaders and media pundits alike Yet few studies have sought to systematically analyze the exact ways in which Internet use may lay the basis for political change In Open Networks Closed Regimes the authors take a comprehensive look at how a broad range of societal and political actors in eight authoritarian and semi authoritarian countries employ the Internet Based on methodical assessment of evidence from these cases China Cuba Singapore Vietnam Burma the United Arab Emirates Saudi Arabia and Egypt the study contends that the Internet is not necessarily a threat to authoritarian regimes **Rule of Law in Latin America** Pilar Domingo, Rachel Sieder, 2001 This volume analyzes the judicial reform processes funded by international donor organizations in Latin America As billions of dollars are spent on judicial reform it is pertinent to ask about the fate of these projects The authors examine the way in which international organizations rationalize and prioritize their reform proposals and agenda in Latin America how reform agendas are implemented and followed up or not how international donor organizations relate to national governments and civil society and to each other and what factors account for the successes and failures of their reform initiatives The book also addresses the question of the connection between rule of law reform and broader processes of regime consolidation and state building from both a political and a social perspective
