Running Out of Fuel, How Air Transat 236 Managed to Fly 100 Miles Without Fuel and Land Safely George

Cramoisi,2010-02-04 On August 24 2001 Air Transat Flight 236 an Airbus 330 was on its way from Toronto Canada to Lisbon Portugal with 306 people on board Above the Atlantic Ocean the crew noticed a dangerous fuel imbalance The crew changed the planned route for a landing at the Lajes Airport in the Azores At 06 13 the right engine flamed out At 06 26 the left engine also flamed out However after flying 100 miles without fuel the crew managed to land the aircraft at the Lajes Airport at 06 45 After the landing small fires started in the main gear wheels they were extinguished by the crash rescue response vehicles Only 16 passengers and 2 cabin crew members received injuries The aircraft suffered damage to the fuselage and to the main landing gear The investigation uncovered a large crack in the fuel line of the right engine it was caused by mistakes during an engine change just before the start of the flight Air Line Pilot ,1996 Federal Register ,2012-11

Manager Moving Mountains Nicole Gaizunas,2013-11-11 Every executive board would like to have the best in their field Unfortunately this undertaking has been failing extensively and categorically for years Every year billions are spent on executive and personnel development talent management training and qualification with modest results No managers can move mountains like this not to mention the range of challenges which are mounting up in this time of exogenous shocks threatened global supply networks and dwindling raw material sources The input principle is to blame Too much emphasis is placed on what is put in The best in class pay attention to what comes out They work according to the principle of return Training should no longer just make it possible for managers and employees to move mountains The mountains need to be moved in the training itself This is self financing and profit generating because it creates return projects which are designed to increase turnover reduce costs and or improve efficiency That's how mountains are moved With this new understanding of management development and the unleashed power of developing personalities In short with future competence The author spotlights twelve megatrends from business and society that managers across all industries will need to master with future competence in the next few years They lead in to Change Management 2.0 Transformation instead of just change The Federal Aviation Administration's Oversight of Outsourced Air Carrier Maintenance United States.
