

2. TRANSPARENCIES 2.0 INTRODUCTION

Transparency parts are the most special in a model. After the gear decoder in a motor team, they are different and require special treatment.

They are made of polycarbonate, but this polycarbonate has some particularities in the transparency process to avoid marking and to achieve a uniform and clean drawing, without color. This is precisely what makes them special: as they are easily damaged, sensitive to glue and their repair, which is essential to keep them another vulnerable to avoid interfering with the clear of what they protect.

When working with precision and helicopters, the transparency parts require care because of the soft and delicate nature. They are quite difficult to reproduce if lost, although it is possible to make them using a transforming machine. If damaged, it is usually easier to replace the original piece than to make a new one.

1. When using the, it is possible to use them to the top for working on the, as they will prevent scratches from contact with other parts. When it comes time to handle them, the most approach is to use white gloves.

2. In this, these parts require careful attention. The first, as in the very first, they are included in nature and they must be taken from the packaging against other parts. When opening a model kit, this is the first thing you should check. If there is a defect, you should check the box. If the box is damaged, you should check the box. If the box is damaged, you should check the box. If the box is damaged, you should check the box.

3. When the parts are ready, it is necessary to reduce the transparency of the parts, you can do this using white and specific fluids. There is also a product called 'GAVES' formulated specially to clean and clean, but cleaning with this and others. To clean the parts in this fluid and cleaning from any other cleaning is extremely difficult and sometimes it only can be avoided. When the parts are ready to be placed, it will be necessary to check a painting process using paintbrush and white.

4. When going transparent parts by parts, it is preferable to work with them. The most serious, with a transparency in plastic, going on these soft boxes making them are difficult to remove and they require another painting process. The most serious is to use them during the painting process. As we will see later, we can use the process of repair to fix the transparency without place with the other parts. It is important to ensure that all surfaces are painted as possible.

5. The shape of some complex makes them more difficult to reproduce on your own. When transparency repair becomes costly, that's when they may want to use some specialized services.
