Harry Potter is real, Matter doesn't exist, Dan Brown is better than Shakespeare. All these statements stem from philosophy's greatest minds, from Plato to Nietzsche. What were they thinking? arguing that it is an empirically ontologically and conceptually implausible way to address the existence and reality of mental features We are better off he contends by addressing consciousness and other mental features in terms of the relationship between world and brain philosophers should consider the world brain problem rather than the mind body problem This calls for a Copernican shift in vantage point from within the mind or brain to beyond the brain in our consideration of mental features Northoff a neuroscientist psychiatrist and philosopher explains that empirical evidence suggests that the brain s spontaneous activity and its spatiotemporal structure are central to aligning and integrating the brain within the world This spatiotemporal structure allows the brain to extend beyond itself into body and world creating the world brain relation that is central to mental features Northoff makes his argument in empirical ontological and epistemic methodological terms He discusses current models of the brain and applies these models to recent data on neuronal features underlying consciousness and proposes the world brain relation as the ontological predisposition for consciousness Philosophy of Mind Edward Feser,2006-10-27 In this lively and entertaining introduction to the philosophy of mind Edward Feser explores the questions central to the discipline such as do computers think and what is consciousness and gives an account of all the most important and significant attempts that have been made to answer them What is a Mind? Suzanne Cunningham,2000-01-01
