Democratization and Human Security in Postwar Sierra Leone Joseph J. Bangura, Marda Mustapha, 2016-04-29 This edited collection is the first book length project to undertake a multidisciplinary study of democratization and human security in the post war nation of Sierra Leone The overarching theme is there is synergy of democratization and human security which makes it imperative for the state to foster and enhance the realization of these concepts in postwar Sierra Leone The book is divided into two broad thematic sections The first section deals with democratization with a critical examination of the creation and instrumentality of institutions largely considered a necessity for democracy to take hold in a country The second section delineates human security or the lack thereof in key areas of political social and economic life Though the book is specific to Sierra Leone African countries and indeed countries transitioning to democracy around the world scholars and practitioners of postwar or democratic transition studies would benefit from the concepts expounded in this collection

Reintegrating Armed Groups After Conflict Mats Berdal, David Ucko, 2009-04-07 This book looks at the political reintegration of armed groups after civil wars and the challenges of transforming rebel insurgent or other non state armed groups into viable political entities Drawing on eight case studies the definition of armed groups here ranges from militias paramilitary forces police units of various kinds to intelligence outfits Likewise the definition of political integration or re integration has not been restricted to the formation of political parties but is understood broadly as active participation in politics policy making or public debate through parties newspapers social organisations think tanks NGOs or public service The book seeks to locate or contextualise individual cases within their distinctive social cultural and historical settings As such it differs from much of the donor driven literature that has tended to abstract the challenge of disarmament demobilisation and reintegration DDR from their political and historical context focusing instead on technical or bureaucratic issues raised by the DDR process Among the issues covered by the volume as a whole three stand out first the role of political settlements in creating legitimate opportunities for erstwhile leaders of armed factions second the ability of reintegration programmes to create genuine socio economic opportunities that can absorb former fighters as functional members of their communities and third the processes involved in transforming an entire rebel movement into a viable political party movement or more generally allowing it to participate in political life This book will be of great interest to students of security and development peace and conflict studies and IR in general as well as practitioners and policymakers Mats Berdal is Professor of Security and Development in the Department of War Studies at King's College London From 2000 to 2003 he was Director of Studies at the International Institute for Strategic Studies IISS in London Mats Berdal is a Visiting Professor at the National Defence and Command College Oslo David Ucko is the Programme Coordinator
