Parliament,1875 Place, Modernity, and the Consumer's World Robert David Sack,1992 To create successful consumer places a retail store may be designed to look like the Australian outback A museum may have the appearance of a department store Travel tours may wend through native communities that stage traditional behavior Umberto Eco calls this authentication or instances where the American imagination demands the real thing and to attain it must fabricate the absolute fake In Place Modernity and the Consumer s World geographer Robert Sack explores this phenomenon along with other problems of modernity mass consumption and advertising to present a dynamic picture of how space and place define the world of the consumer He begins with the geographical premise that space and place provide a means by which we make sense of the world and through which we act He expands this premise to form a relational framework for geographical analysis which is used to show how space is embedded in the realms of meaning nature and social relations He proceeds to demonstrate how places are defined by the ways in which they bring together and transform these three realms Sack then turns to the consumer s world the shopping malls department stores theme parks and resorts that form the everyday landscape of mass consumption He looks at how these places together with the advertising that idealizes the way products are supposed to create places and contexts are constructed and how they intentionally alter aspects of reality in such a way as to create those disorienting qualities associated with postmodernism Finally Sack considers place as both an empirical and a moral concept and establishes a geographical basis for making moral judgments about it Using that framework he finds that places of consumption impair judgment because they disguise the relationships between meaning nature and social relations America ,1917
