Synergy in Mergers & Acquisitions Stefan Karenfort, 2011 The creation of synergy which is often illustrated as the 2 2 5 effect is a dominant motive as well as a key success factor for Mergers Acquisitions M A Inadequate expectations with respect to the synergistic potential can however easily result in an overrated acquisition price If the planned synergies later fail to materialize it will be increasingly hard for the acquiring firm to achieve positive value gains for its shareholders It is therefore vital to obtain a comprehensive understanding of the synergistic potential of a planned M A project This issue was addressed with a doctoral thesis investigating the underlying drivers of synergy realization in particular the concept of business relatedness which describes the similarity of firm attributes such as product market presence resource configuration and supply channel types Using a quantitative hypothesis testing survey design more than 300 M A consultants worldwide have been invited to evaluate past M A transactions with respect to their synergistic effects In contrast to earlier studies the relatedness of the merging firms is established as a multi dimensional concept considering various attributes of business relatedness simultaneously The degree of relatedness is measured using managerial perceptions which is a comparatively new measurement approach transferred from diversification research to the field of M A The individual dimensions of relatedness show a different effectiveness concerning synergy realization providing further support to recent contributions which advocate a multi dimensional conceptualization of business relatedness The study identifies dimensions of business relatedness and their underlying drivers which are particularly relevant to predictions concerning the synergistic potential The research project thus makes a valuable contribution to clarify the impact of relatedness on M A performance and provides important implications for practitioners regarding the eval
