Building China Sarah Swider,2016-02-19 Roughly 260 million workers in China have participated in a mass migration of peasants moving into the cities and construction workers account for almost half of them In Building China Sarah Swider draws on her research in Beijing Guangzhou and Shanghai between 2004 and 2012 including living in an enclave working on construction jobsites and interviews with eighty three migrants managers and labor contractors This ethnography focuses on the lives work family and social relations of construction workers It adds to our understanding of China s new working class the deepening rural urban divide and the growing number of undocumented migrants working outside the protection of labor laws and regulation Swider shows how these migrants members of the global precariat an emergent social force based on vulnerability insecurity and uncertainty are changing China s class structure and what this means for the prospects for an independent labor movement The workers who build and serve Chinese cities along with those who produce goods for the world to consume are mostly migrant workers They or their parents grew up in the countryside they are farmers who left the fields and migrated to the cities to find work Informal workers who represent a large segment of the emerging workforce do not fit the traditional model of industrial wage workers Although they have not been incorporated into the new legal framework that helps define and legitimize China s decentralized legal authoritarian regime they have emerged as a central component of China s economic success and an important source of labor resistance Workers and Change in China

Rising Powers, People Rising Alf Gunvald Nilsen,Karl von Holdt,2021-04-25 Rising Powers People Rising is a pathbreaking volume in which leading international scholars discuss the emerging political economy of development in the BRICS countries centred on neo liberalization precarity and popular struggles The rise of the BRICS countries Brazil Russia India China and South Africa has called into question the future of Western dominance in world markets and geopolitics However the developmental trajectories of the BRICS countries are shot through with socio economic fault lines that relegate large numbers of people to the margins of current growth processes where life is characterized by multiple and overlapping vulnerabilities These socio economic fault lines have in turn given rise to political convulsions across the BRICS countries ranging from single issue protests to sustained social movements oriented towards structural transformation The contributions in this book focus on the ways in and extent to which these trajectories generate distinct forms and patterns of mobilization and resistance and conversely how popular struggles impact on and shape these trajectories The book unearths the economic social and political contradictions that tend to disappear from view in mainstream narratives of the BRICS countries as rising powers in the world system The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Globalizations

into the interrelationship among gender power and economic disparity in the Global South through an intersectional lens. It analyses the interplay of diverse forms of oppression such as class, caste, race, ethnicity, and geography and their impacts on individual lives and prospects for success. This analysis employs diverse case studies to examine how historical legacies, social and political institutions, and economic mechanisms generate and perpetuate inequality across various domains. Gender Power and Economic Inequality in the Global South illustrates how women, particularly from Dalit, black, indigenous, and other marginalized groups, wield power and resist exclusion while challenging patriarchal norms and advocating for equity in politics, the economy, the environment, and the digital realm. It distinctly focusses on the Global South and critically examines global development narratives, prioritizing local knowledge, action, and feminist futures in its endeavours. Further, the book examines the dynamics of power within institutions, informal economy, housing, technology, peacebuilding, and international cooperation. Encompassing a broad spectrum of disciplines including economics, political science, sociology, law, and environmental studies, the book also examines how global trends such as the green transition and digital innovation influence gendered realities. This edited text serves as an invaluable resource for scholars, researchers, practitioners, and advanced students in gender studies, development studies, international relations, and related fields due to its pertinent information and policy recommendations. The Gilded Cage Ya-Wen Lei, 2023-11-21 How China's economic development combines a veneer of unprecedented progress with the increasingly despotic rule of surveillance over all aspects of life. Since the mid 2000s, the Chinese state has increasingly shifted away from labor intensive export oriented manufacturing to a process of socioeconomic development centered on science and technology. Ya Wen Lei traces the contours of this techno developmental regime and its resulting form of techno state capitalism, telling the stories of those whose lives have been transformed for better and worse by China's rapid rise to economic and technological dominance. Drawing on groundbreaking fieldwork and a wealth of in depth interviews with managers, business owners, workers, software engineers, and local government officials, Lei describes the vastly unequal values assigned to economic sectors deemed high end versus low end, and the massive expansion of technical and legal instruments used to measure and control workers and capital. She shows how China's rise has been uniquely shaped by its time compressed development, the complex relationship between the nation's authoritarian state and its increasingly powerful but unruly tech companies, and an ideology that fuses nationalism with high modernism, technological fetishism, and meritocracy. Some have compared China's extraordinary transformation to America's Gilded Age. This provocative book reveals how it is more like a gilded cage, one in which the Chinese state and tech capital are producing rising inequality and new forms of social exclusion.
