Domestic Goods Joy Parr,1999-12-15 Visions of life in the 1950s often spring from the United States supermarkets, freeways, huge gleaming cars, bright new appliances, automated households. Historian Joy Parr looks beyond the generalizations about the indulgence of this era to find a specifically Canadian consumer culture. Focusing on the records left by consumer groups and manufacturers and relying on interviews and letters from many Canadian women who had set up household in the decade after the war, she reveals exactly how and why Canadian homemakers distinguished themselves from the consumer frenzy of their southern neighbours. Domestic Goods focuses primarily on the design, production, promotion and consumption of furniture and appliances. For Parr such a focus demands an analysis of the intertwining of the political, economic and aesthetic. Parr examines how the shortage of appliances in the early postwar years was a direct result of government reconstruction policy and how the international style of high modernism reflected the postwar dream of free trade. But while manufacturers devised new plans for the consumer depression era, frugality and a conscious setting of priorities within the family led potential customers to evade and rework what was offered them.
