Captains of the Soul Michael Gladwin, 2013-12-19 Known affectionately as Padres chaplains have been integral to the Australian Army for a century From the legendary William Fighting Mac McKenzie whose friendships with diggers in the trenches of Gallipoli and France made him a national figure in 1918 to Harold Wardale Greenwood who died caring for the sick while a POW on the brutal Sandakan death march in July 1945 this book assesses the contribution of Australian Army chaplains in conflicts and peacekeeping missions in barracks and among service families Drawing on a wealth of original archival material and little known published sources Captains of the Soul represents the first comprehensive account of Australian Army chaplains It surveys their changing role and experience from the Great War of 1914-18 to the recent conflict in Afghanistan charts the evolution of the Royal Australian Army Chaplains Department across its first century and addresses the significance of Army chaplaincy for Australia's military religious and cultural history. It is a story of personal conviction and selfless devotion. The Amazing SAS Ian McPhedran, 2010. For the soldiers and officers of Australia's Special Air Service SAS Regiment this is not just their professional motto but a creed that shapes their lives. The SAS is among the world's most respected special forces units: a crack team of men from the Australian Defence Force who can be relied upon to handle the most difficult strategically sensitive and dangerous of military tasks. Now THE AMAZING SAS provides a thrilling insight into the way this country's SAS soldiers are selected and trained and reveals fascinating details about recent SAS deployments: East Timor, the 2000 Olympic games, the Tampa, the Afghanistan campaign and the regiment's action-packed mission in Iraq. THE AMAZING SAS draws on interviews with General Peter Cosgrove, Prime Minister John Howard, Chief of Army Lieutenant General Peter Leahy, former SAS commanding officers Gus Gilmore and Tim McOwan and many SAS soldiers and officers. A Time for War John Birmingham, 2005-12-01. In the fourth Quarterly Essay of 2005 John Birmingham ponders the Australian way of war. After East Timor and Bali, a combination of primal fear and primal ambition has transformed attitudes to our region: to security and to war as an instrument of politics. Australian defence policy has become more assertive and our armed forces are being radically restructured and hardened. Australia now has the capacity and even the will to act as a military power in its region. A Time for War begins with a gripping account of Operation Anaconda, the 2002 battle in Afghanistan to which Australian special forces made a crucial contribution. Birmingham also looks at our war, dreaming the sanctification of Anzac Day and the eclipse of the Vietnam Syndrome. Ranging from Sir John Monash to Peter Cosgrove, from Rudyard Kipling to The One Day of the Year, he finds that our armed forces can now do no wrong and that politicians have taken note. The new militarism is not simply a response to September 11; he argues it marks a deeper shift in the culture. It being an RSL, we would stand each night at six o'clock for the prayer of remembrance. It was always a moving occasion, a strange suspended moment when the pokies and racing channel, the piped music and the drunken bullshitting all fell away. Friends from overseas who witnessed the quiet ceremony never failed to be impressed. One poet from Czechoslovakia had always thought Australians to be a shallow, soulless, materialistic people, but she changed her mind after her first experience of the ode to the fallen among the half-empty schooners and chip packets. John Birmingham A Time For War. Killing the Enemy Adam Leong Kok Wey, 2015-09-28. During World War II the British formed a secret division, the SOE or Special Operations Executive, in order to support resistance organisations in occupied Europe. It also engaged in targeted killing, the assassination of enemy political and military leaders. The unit is famous for equipping its agents with tools for use behind enemy lines, such as folding motorbikes, miniature submarines and suicide pills disguised as coat buttons. But its activities are now also gaining attention as a forerunner to today's extra-legal killings of wartime enemies in foreign territory, for example through the use of unmanned drones. Adam Leong's work evaluates the effectiveness
