Online Communication in the Context of Personal, Virtual and Corporate Identity Formation Lutz Peschke,Can Gürmeric,2018-09-17 The implementation of digital media in our today s communication has a strong impact on the media behaviours in the society In the last decades great importance is given to the protection of the personality rights in the context of the new media Since our communication is a media based communication its impact on the construction of reality affects the normative value pattern of societies To understand new media as a central aspect of our mediatized world it has to be located and analysed both in the communicative and normative system Today social media is not anymore based on user generated content but is now turned to a platform for business makers with and in the context of Big Data This book will discuss the formation of differnt identities as a result of different ways of new media usage It includes on the one hand online communication between personal and virtual identities It discuss researches about online identity and online anonymity Self presentation strategies by using online dating platforms the phenomenon of Internet Mothers as well as the potential of cyberbullying of Snapchat On the other hand online communication between corporate and new business strategies It describes and discusses the evolution of television changes of music consumer habits caused by music on deman tends and the impact of social media operations in maintaining brand reputation This book is located between user generated content and professional applications and regards itself as a contribution to a media discourse in a mediatized and globalized world

Starving the Dream Nathan F. Alleman,Cara Cliburn Allen,Sarah Madsen,2025-03-04 How exceptional low income students navigate and pursue opportunity in prestige oriented universities at the personal cost of hunger Beneath the veneer of prestige and promise a hidden issue pervades the campuses of America s selective universities In Starving the Dream Nathan F Alleman Cara Cliburn Allen and Sarah E Madsen reveal the startling contradiction between the celebrated opportunities of these prestige oriented institutions and the food insecurity that exceptional low income students must navigate within environments of plenty Through meticulous case study research the authors leverage student and administrative interviews observations and official and alternative campus tours to uncover how normatively affluent universities are rife with expectations of extensive campus involvement and material displays of wealth However visions of the ideal student experience are only attainable for low income students at the cost of either involvement or consistent food access Critiquing the social and symbolic meaning that food takes on in affluent universities where students are socialized into coveting upper middle class lifestyle markers such as gourmet coffee and branded campus clothing the book argues that administrators must better align services and support with the demands of a rigorous academic experience It also encourages universities to recognize students innovative solution making and incorporate their voices and agency in campus strategies This expansive study challenges readers to reconsider the broader impacts of higher education s structures and priorities and urges a reevaluation of what full participation should look like in these resource and opportunity rich environments Starving the Dream is an appeal to university leaders campus administrators and students themselves concerned with educational equity beyond mere access It provides a blueprint for meaningful change that centers the knowledge of those experiencing and administrating food insecurity such that the dreams of selective university attendance need not be deferred by student hunger Strategic Marketing Douglas C. West, John Battice Ford, Essam Ibrahim, 2015 This text discusses how companies create competitive advantage through strategic marketing Using established frameworks and concepts it examines aspects of marketing strategy and thinking It provides examples to facilitate the understanding of theoretical concepts
