highly abstracted photographic silk screens that reveal upon closer inspection tightly cropped tangles of wire and wood washed up on a beach near the artist's Long Island home. Though Salle has often affixed ceramic objects to the canvas in the past here the smashed or collapsed vessel and platter shapes begin for the first time to take on the agency and autonomy of independent art objects. Including an interview with the artist this elegant volume is a tribute to Salle's merging of figurative tradition with abstraction and to the dialogue he creates between disparate elements.

Cathcart, Craig Owens, 1984 Carnegie International John R. Lane, Saskia Bos, John Caldwell, 1985 When Pittsburgh industrialist Andrew Carnegie founded Carnegie Institute in 1895 one of his bold ambitions was to create a museum of modern art as part of the institute. The exhibition series he established in the following year would become the linchpin of that scheme. Through the exhibition Carnegie sought to educate audiences, attract the art world to Pittsburgh and above all to build a collection through the purchase of the old masters of tomorrow. While the mission of Carnegie International has remained constant over the years it has had many incarnations. In 1896 the show was established as a yearly survey and presented as the Annual Exhibition.
