

Australian Plant Name Index

The Australian Plant Name Index is an index of all scientific names that have been applied to seed-bearing plants and ferns. For each generic, specific and infra-specific name the Index (with over 55,000 entries) lists the original place of publication of the name, its typification and nomenclatural status and cites recent revision where the name has been used. A sub-set, the Census of Australian Plants, gives current usage and geographic distribution for currently accepted names. Already, the Index is an important reference for botanists. It provides much of the background information necessary for taxonomists who are writing the Flora of Australia or doing revisionary or monographic studies on Australian plants. It is also a useful source of information for ecologists, horticulturalists, conservationists and others needing information on the nomenclature and taxonomy of Australian plants. Information from the database shows periods of high and low taxonomic activity and the influence that significant workers in the 19th and 20th centuries have had on this activity.
