What does the water cycle have to do with yin yang and what does this teach us about alchemy Find out in An Introduction to Alchemical Philosophy Excerpt The philosophy of alchemy is not limited to the understanding of alchemy alone If it were then it must surely be untrue as there can be no truth that does not apply in every circumstance and in every situation To be called a truth it must be true everywhere and at all times Alchemical philosophy is fundamental it applies in every instance of every circumstance of everything throughout the universe Alchemical philosophy should not strictly be referred to as anything other than just philosophy It is the same philosophy that governs everything from the movement of the stars to the birth of a child to the development of a planet Alchemical philosophy is not an aspect of alchemy it is an aspect of the universe Alchemy itself could be said to be no more than the natural effect of philosophy It is an inevitable result of the philosophy which governs our universe and so the existence of alchemy can be predicted by anyone who comes to a good understanding of philosophy Naturally this is how alchemy came about a philosopher strived to understand the nature of reality and from his understanding of philosophy he knew how to guide Nature to create a physical manifestation of its principles the process for which we now call alchemy No one can be called an alchemist and no one will have any chance of making the Philosophers Stone unless one understands what they are doing and why they are doing it by reflecting on the fundamental philosophical principles on which alchemy is based Hence the purpose of this book
