If an organization is efficient ... it will sit on the efficient frontier. However, most organizations of today are stagnant and strive to improve their performance to improve efficiency and effectiveness of what they do with their resources. It is necessary to adopt new practices and methodologies that are conducive to competition in the industry.

Dimension	Example
Tactics Operational effectiveness to improve the performance of activities Short-term improvement	A car manufacturer that improves its customer service processes across the customer life and the organization's culture, which results in an overall business improvement. This creates expect competition to then take the same steps.
Strategy Competitive strategy to enhance the activities performed, so that they differ from others or are appreciated in a different manner to standard practice in the market. Long-term improvement	A strategy move could be for the car manufacturer to start offering health insurance as well. This increases the car manufacturer's value in a new market and differentiating itself from other traditional car insurers. Strategy is about thinking outside the box and expanding into new products and markets.
