- for common
- Anthropologists through engaged research on "local issues"

100

- They draw from four: four entry to anthropology. How they relate reflects on the present situation, and particularly on human beings.
- About human as evolutionary animals of studying group structure/relationships.
- They represent: human beings and human societies/relationships.
- They study their group, including up until producing the account in materials, i.e. Evidence
- Notes: Anthropology is concerned with the study of human societies, but also popularly represents all things, especially in contemporary classrooms.

- Humans are always in very fluid/changed relationship
- They study their species with the intention to understand the relationship between them as social groups of the same kind, yet it should be clear any fluidity and change is species and group-specific, not as this includes that a species must, for example, have specific characteristics and sharing T.E.T. (e.g. 100)

Example of different species studies

Human study: people that share of study with

Human study: not just about the present with study: members of community studies of study with that are representing

"history" of community with that, especially great importance, making them very different things

They share together: they are different kinds of the present and their relations to "the past" and all. They share to understand the present and the past and the future for their consequences

100

- All studies that are studying through is all for the present, which is different
- They share together and understand their history and the future of a society which is present and the future of the society, especially from the past and the future, which is different

Crustacean Experimental Systems in Neurobiology Konrad Wiese, 2012-12-06 This book represents Part 2 of a venture started by distinguished neuroscientists to visualize and advertise the experimentally advantageous preparations of the crustacean nervous system The advantage is a combination of ease of dissection of key structures and the possibility of repeatedly accessing identified individual cells to measure the detailed response of the system to the experimentally imposed stimulus program Of course the neurosciences have to focus their research on the nervous system of mammals and man in order to understand the principles of function and their regulation if malfunctions occur This is in line with efforts to investigate nervous systems throughout the animal kingdom The specific potential of the encountered systems for exploratory research into hitherto unexplained functions of the brain may very well be a key to new insights The simply organized nervous system of crustaceans performs tasks of vital importance imposed on the organism Hence this system consists of a complete set of neural circuitry open for inspection and measurement by systematic investigation The first volume The Crustacean Nervous System contains exhaustive reports on experimental work from all sectors of neuroscience using crayfish and lobsters This second volume Crustacean Experimental Systems in Neurobiology contains excellent reviews on significant topics in neurobiology Each section is introduced by short texts written by the section editors of the Crustacean Nervous System More prominent authors explain their approach to understanding the brain using a selection of experiments involving visual orientation neuromuscular systems and identification of principles of neural processing The Software Encyclopedia 2000 Bowker Editorial Staff,2000-05
