

THE RETIREMENT CEREMONY

"BOATSWAIN! STAND-BY TO PIPE THE SIDE!" From the early 1500's through today, this order has been passed on naval ships: Spanish, French, English, Dutch. Yes, all the Navies of the world used the boatswain's call and sideboys to bring aboard or send ashore all ship's company officers, visiting officers, dignitaries, and VIPs.

The boatswain would pipe the side as the sideboys would haul on the ropes to raise or lower the boarding platform. This was done so that officers, visiting officers and dignitaries would not have to climb the rat lines used by the crew. The Captain or Master would be especially careful to extend this honor to port officials to ensure a good berth for his ship while in port.

It was not uncommon for the Commanding Officer of a ship to order up the JOLLY BOAT -- a crew of eight strong backs, sideboys and boatswain, to send an old shipmate and fellow officer to his shore retirement home, never to sail a naval ship again.

"ALL HANDS ON DECK" was passed, speeches were made about the retiree's service -- great victories, battles fought upon the open sea, raging storms weathered, and voyages to distant and strange lands with port-of-call others only dreamed about. Remembrances of shipmates left behind would be recalled.

Then the Commanding Officer would present the retiree with a fine sword. The officers would present him with a brace of fine pistols, a rifle, or a musket. Then the crew would present him with a sea chest, bound in leather and brass, lined with cedar to protect the uniform he wore so proudly those many years. These gifts were to remind him of the ships he sailed, the ports he made, and above all, to remind him of the crews with whom he served those many years.

The boatswain would stand tall the sideboys. The crew was called to attention. Then the retiree would step to the quarterdeck, salute the Commanding Officer, and request permission to go ashore. "Permission granted." The retiree would step onto the platform and salute the flag as the sideboys lowered away to the boatswain's call.

Today we leave to, stop all engines, lay about smartly, drop the anchor, and stand by to pay honor to one of our shipmates -- to honor those years served, the guidance, the leadership, the expertise, and above all, the friendship that this shipmate has given.

"Boatswain . . . Stand-by to pipe the side: SHIPMATE GOING ASHORE."
