Arresting Development The Power Of Knowledge For Social Change:

Arresting Development Craig Johnson, 2008-11-28 Scholars have become increasingly concerned about the impact of neo liberalism on the field of development Governments around the world have for some time been exposed to the forces of globalization and macro economic reform reflecting the power and influence of the world s principal international economic institutions and a broader commitment to the principles of neo classical economics and free trade Concerns have also been raised that neo classical theory now dominates the ways in which scholars frame and ask their questions in the field of development This book is about the ways in which ideologies shape the construction of knowledge for development A central theme concerns the impact of neo liberalism on contemporary development theory and research The book s main objectives are twofold One is to understand the ways in which neo liberalism has framed and defined the meta theoretical aims and assumptions of what is deemed relevant important and appropriate to the study of development A second is to explore the theoretical and ideological terms on which an alternative to neo classical theory may be theorized idealized and pursued By tracing the impact of Marxism postmodernism and liberalism on the study of development Arresting Development contends that development has become increasingly fragmented in terms of the theories and methodologies it uses to understand and explain complex and contextually specific processes of economic development and social change Outside of neo classical economics and related fields of rational choice the notion that social science can or should aim to develop general and predictive theories about development has become mired in a philosophical and political orientation that questions the ability of scholars to make universal or comparative statements about the nature of history cultural diversity and progress To advance the debate a case is made that development needs to recapture what the American sociologist Peter Evans once called the comparative institutional method At the heart of this approach is an inductive methodology that searches for commonalities and connections to broader historical trends and problems while at the same time incorporating divergent and potentially competing views about the nature of history culture and development This book will be of interest to scholars and students of Development Social and Political Studies and it will also be beneficial to professionals interested in the challenge of constructing knowledge for development

Heidegger and Development in the Global South Siby K.

George, 2015-03-05 Taking the Heideggerian critical ontology of technology as its base this volume looks at postcolonial modernization and development in the global south as the worldwide expansion of the western metaphysical understanding of reality We live today in an increasingly globalizing technological society that Martin Heidegger described in the middle of the last century as the planetary imperialism of technologically organized man Consequent upon this cultural intellectual globalization the ahistorical violent individualistic calculative and capitalistic logic of the metaphysics of technology is permeating the life world even of the world s poorest peoples in ways they could neither choose nor control This volume questions the political ethics and justice of post war development discourse in the light of the egalitarian aims of modern societies cultural freedom of communities and nations and the ecological limits of the planet The final chapters discuss the alternative proposal of development as various conceptions of good life and equitable human flourishing amidst equally flourishing non human life and non living beings This unique volume is the first book length treatment of the ontology of modernization and development in the global south from a Heideggerian stance Making Commons Dynamic Prateep Kumar Nayak,2021-03-01 With an emphasis on the challenges of sustaining the commons across local to global scales Making Commons Dynamic examines the empirical basis of theorising the concepts of commonisation and decommonisation as a way to understand commons as a process and offers analytical directions for policy and practice that can potentially help maintain commons as commons in the future Focusing on commonisation decommonisation as an analytical framework useful to examine and respond to changes in the commons the chapter contributions explore how natural resources are commonised and decommonised through the influence of multi level internal and external drivers and their implications for commons governance across disparate geographical and temporal contexts It draws from a large number of geographically diverse empirical cases 20 countries in North South and Central America and South and South East Asia They involve a wide range of commons related to fisheries forests grazing wetlands coastal marine rivers and dams aquaculture wildlife tourism groundwater surface freshwater mountains small islands social movements and climate The book is a transdisciplinary endeavour with contributions by scholars from geography history sociology anthropology political studies planning human ecology cultural and applied ecology environmental and development studies environmental science and technology public policy Indigenous tribal studies Latin American and Asian studies and environmental change and governance and authors representing the commons community NGOs and policy Contributors include academics community members NGOs practitioners and policymakers Therefore commonisation decommonisation lessons drawn from these chapters are well suited for contributing to the practice policy and theory of the commons both locally and globally The Urban Climate Challenge Craig Johnson,Noah Toly,Heike Schroeder,2015-02-20 Drawing upon a variety of empirical and theoretical perspectives The Urban Climate Challenge provides a hands on perspective about the political and technical challenges now facing cities and transnational urban networks in the global climate regime Bringing together experts working in the fields of global environmental governance urban sustainability and climate change this volume explores the ways in which cities transnational urban networks and global policy institutions are repositioning themselves in relation to this changing global policy environment Focusing on both Northern and Southern experience across the globe three questions that have strong bearing on the ways in which we understand and assess the changing relationship between cities and global climate system are examined The Urban Climate Challenge will be of interest to scholars of urban climate policy global environmental governance and climate change It will be of interest to readers more generally interested in the ways in which cities are now addressing the inter related challenges of sustainable urban growth and global climate change Chapter 9 and Chapter 11 of Politics of Gross National Happiness Kent Schroeder, 2017-10-03 This book explores the practices of governance in Bhutan and how they shape the implementation of the country's Gross National Happiness (GNH) development strategy. The author examines whether Bhutan's innovative GNH governance framework successfully navigates competing power dynamics and generates the intended human development outcomes of Gross National Happiness. The analysis is structured around a comparison of the implementation of four GNH development policies: tourism, media, farm roads, and human wildlife conflict, and their larger implications on power, governance, and the human development paradigm in Bhutan and beyond.

Argentina's Economic Growth and Recovery Michael Cohen, 2012-05-15 This book examines the causes of the economic and political crisis in Argentina in 2001 and the process of strong economic recovery. It poses the question of how a country which defaulted on its external loans and was widely criticized by international observers could have succeeded in its growth and development despite this decision in 2002. It examines this process in terms of the impact of neo-liberal policies on the economy and the role of development strategy and the state in recovering from the crisis.

Production Dynamics for Life Quality in the Incipient 21st Century Chau-kiu Cheung, 2022-08-18 This book addresses the life quality of the average adult in the world based on international data weighted according to national population size. It rests on the theoretical framework of analytic functionalism to explain statics and dynamics in the production of life quality. The statics means the influences of personal and national factors on life quality, whereas the dynamics mean the changes in the influences over time. This approach elucidates life quality at the personal level rather than at the national level, which overlooks what happens to the average person living in the world. The approach involves a broad view of the production of life quality, including experiences, practices, and appraisals of life. This production also involves personal background characteristics and the national indicators of modernization, globalization, and environmental issues. Knowledge about the production is helpful for policymakers, researchers, students, and other people to upgrade life quality. Such knowledge is valuable because it is up to date, generalizable, and sensible based on the analytic functionalist theoretical framework and statistical estimation.

Debating Disaster Risk Gonzalo Lizarralde, Lisa M. Bornstein, Tapan Dhar, 2025-08-19 Dealing with the risks of climate change and disaster is a political process. It produces winners and losers, mobility and permanence, radical change and continuity, relief and suffering. For some, it ultimately leads to life or death. Yet consultants, academics, humanitarian agents, and politicians often simply propose well-intentioned ideas: resilience, sustainability, community participation, emergency shelter, green development while failing to perceive the blind spots and unintended consequences of such approaches Debating Disaster Risk brings together leading global experts to explore the controversies that emerge and the tough decisions that must be made when cities people and the environment are at risk Scholars and practitioners discuss the challenges of reducing vulnerability and rebuilding after destruction in an accessible and lively debate format with commentary by researchers students and development workers from across the world They emphasize the ethical consequences of decisions about how cities and communities should prepare for and react to disasters considering issues such as housing environmental protection urban development and infrastructure recovery A valuable resource for scholars students and practitioners in a variety of fields this book provides an in depth analysis of the difficult choices we face in dealing with disasters As climate change accelerates Debating Disaster Risk invites readers to grapple with the most pressing controversies 2010
