Art Energy How Culture Changes:

Art & Energy Barry Lord, 2014-05-01 In Art Energy Barry Lord argues that human creativity is deeply linked to the resources available on Earth for our survival. From our ancient mastery of fire through our exploitation of coal, oil and gas to the development of today's renewable energy sources, each new source of energy fundamentally transforms our art and culture. How we interact with the world, organize our communities, communicate and conceive of and assign value to art. By analyzing art, artists and museums across eras and continents, Lord demonstrates how our cultural values and artistic expression are formed by our efforts to access and control the energy sources that make these cultures possible.

Communicating the Climate Crisis Julia B. Corbett, 2021-02-22 Communicating the Climate Crisis puts communication at the center of the change we need, providing concrete strategies that help break the inertia that blocks social and cultural transformation. Reimagining earth not just as the ground we walk upon but as the atmosphere we breathe. This book examines our consumption-based identities in fossil fuel culture and the necessity of structural change to address the climate crisis. Strategies for overcoming obstacles start with facing the emotional challenges and mental health tolls of the crisis that lead to climate silence. Breaking that silence through personal climate conversations elevates the importance of the problem, finds common ground and eases climate anxiety. Climate justice and faith-based worldviews help articulate our moral responsibility to take drastic action to protect all humans and the living world. This book tells a new story of hope through action, not as isolated guilty consumers but as social actors who engage hearts, hands and minds to envision and create a desired future.

The Routledge Companion to Contemporary Art, Visual Culture, and Climate Change T. J. Demos, Emily Eliza Scott, Subhankar Banerjee, 2021-02-25 International in scope, this volume brings together leading and emerging voices working at the intersection of contemporary art, visual culture, activism, and climate change, and addresses key questions such as why and how do art and visual culture and their ethics and values matter with regard to a world increasingly shaped by climate breakdown. Foregrounding a decolonial and climate justice-based approach, this book joins efforts within the environmental humanities in seeking to widen considerations of climate change as it intersects with social, political, and cultural realms. It simultaneously expands the nascent branches of ecocritical art history and visual culture and builds toward the advancement of a robust and critical interdisciplinarity appropriate to the complex entanglements of climate change. This book will be of special interest to scholars and practitioners of contemporary art and visual culture, environmental studies, cultural geography, and political ecology.

Breakthrough Problem Solving with Action Learning Michael Marquardt, Roland K. Yeo, 2012-05-16 Breakthrough Problem Solving with Action Learning explores why and how action learning groups have been so successful and creative in solving complex problems. The text begins by briefly reviewing the theories that undergird the effectiveness of action learning, philosophically situating readers and pointing them in the direction of related academic works that they may wish to explore. It then turns to stories of how organizations have employed action learning in solving specific often encountered business problems These cases not only serve as real world models for how action learning can be successfully employed but also offer inspiration and potential starting points and guidelines for other businesses that face similar problems The book concludes with a cross case analysis that pinpoints the ingredients necessary for breakthrough problem solving via action learning

Residential Architecture as Infrastructure Stephen H. Kendall,2021-11-29 This edited collection provides an up to date account by a group of well informed and globally positioned authors of recently implemented projects public policies and business activities in Open Building around the world Countless residential Open Building projects have been built in a number of countries some without knowledge of the original theory and methods These projects differ in architectural style building industry methods economic system and social aims National building standards and guidelines have been promulgated in several countries Finland China Japan Korea providing incentives and guidance to Open Building implementation Businesses in several countries have begun to deliver advanced FIT OUT systems both for new construction and for retrofitting existing buildings demonstrating the economic advantages of the responsive independent dwelling This book also argues that the open building approach is essential for the reactivation of the existing building stock for long term value because in the end it costs less The book discusses these developments in residential architecture from the perspective of an infrastructure model of built environment This model enables decision makers to manage risk and uncertainty while avoiding a number of problems often associated with large fast moving projects such as separation and distribution of design tasks and responsibility and the ensuing boundary frictions Residential Architecture as Infrastructure adds to the Routledge Open Building Series and will appeal to architects urban designers researchers and policy makers interested in this international review of current projects policies and business activities focused on Open Building implementation

Digital

Immersive Art in China Xinyang Zhao,2024-10-08 China has been stereotypically perceived as a place of backwardness However the 21st century has been a transitional period for China to express its cultural power This book explores how digital technology in particular virtual reality VR and augmented reality AR is playing a role in China's rejuvenation especially in relation to cultural displays performances and art exhibitions It examines how audiences both in China and globally respond to Digital China through digital immersive art Drawing on the author's anthropological research and empirical studies on stakeholders and audience reception this book provides a comprehensive understanding of the transformative power of digital technology and its impact on cultural experience in contemporary China The reform of the cultural system over the past two decades in China has fostered a techno cultural imaginary mixed with the celebration of Chinese civilisation and advanced by digital technology and entrepreneurs Such a hybrid imaginary influences how people view and consume digital immersive art Much digital immersive art within China is thus viewed within the framework of modernisation as the case studies in this book will show Outside China however the dominant narrative of techno orientalism prevails constructing a different image of Digital China a technocratic state
