didn't pick up a pen for more than fifteen years until Robert Redford came to town. Appearing in Redford's movie led to writing for national magazines and then to selling her first nonfiction book to a major New York publisher. Now Carren Strock lays out her improbable journey from not a writer to professional writer. She shares what she's learned along the way and tells you how you can do it too. Divided into three sections, A Writer's Journey tells you what you need to know before, during, and after writing a book. In brief and to the point chapters, Strock provides clear and concise tips on how to stay motivated as you hone your skills and write your book and how to avoid the pitfalls that could derail your career. She also gives you advice on how to find a good agent, navigate the world of publishing, and market your book. About the author: Carren Strock is a New York-based author and lecturer. Her first book, Married Women Who Love Women, was a ground-breaking study of a previously unmentioned segment of society. When she isn't working on another book or article, she's painting, taking photographs, traveling, or spending time with her grandchildren.
