Guidelines for the Design of Footbridges fib Fédération internationale du béton,2005-01-01 The intention of fib Bulletin 32 is to present guidelines for the design of footbridges as well as bridges accommodating cyclists and bridleways equestrian paths The need for these guidelines comes from the fact that structural engineers designing footbridges currently have to spend considerable time and energy collecting information from numerous documents codes and recommendations to make design decisions There seems to be no international document dedicated solely to the design of footbridges These guidelines attempt to provide a concentrated source of information regarding all design issues specific to footbridges It is meant to be a liberal document in the sense that it promotes new innovative and bold yet prudent designs by sharing the experience of the authors summarizing specifications given in codes and presenting a collection of examples of well designed structures or structural details from around the world It is not intended to be an international code that specifies limits and admissible values thus encouraging timid conservative designs that are repetitions of approved and tested designs. Indeed it may be the very fact that no international code exists specifically for footbridges that encourages the wide variety of footbridge designs found today. It should be noted that numerous guidelines, codes and books have been published on bridge design in general. Information given in those publications that is also applicable to footbridges is not repeated in Bulletin 32. The chapters of these guidelines all follow the same pattern: an introduction to the subject, general guidelines as well as do's and don'ts, a summary of information found in existing international codes, recommendations, experience of the authors and built examples with comparison and comments on this information, examples, Plenty of illustrations and photographs help to visualize the themes of this work. The last chapter, Case Studies, contains footbridges each with a short summary of main structural data and references for further reading.

Cognitive Work Analysis Neville A. Stanton, Paul M. Salmon, Guy H. Walker, Daniel P. Jenkins, 2017-07-14

Over the past decade Cognitive Work Analysis (CWA) has been one of the popular human factors approaches for complex systems evaluation and design applications. This is reflected by a diverse range of applications across safety critical domains. The book brings together a series of CWA applications and discussions from world leading human factors researchers and practitioners. It begins with an overview of the CWA framework including its theoretical underpinnings, the methodological approaches involved, including practical guidance on each phase and previous applications of the framework. The core of the book is a series of CWA applications undertaken in a wide range of safety critical domains for a range of purposes. These serve to demonstrate the contribution that CWA can make to real world projects and provide readers with inspiration for how such analyses can be practically carried out. Following this, a series of applications in which new approaches or adaptations have been added to the framework are presented. These show how practical applications feedback into the theories and approaches underpinning CWA. The closing chapter then speculates on future applications of the framework and on a series of new research directions required in order to enhance its utility. In emphasising the practical realities of performing CWA and the real world impacts it can provide, the book tackles several common misconceptions in a constructive and persuasive way. It provides a welcome demonstration of how CWA can be a powerful ally in tackling complexity related problems that afflict systems in all areas.

Small Electric Vehicles Amelie Ewert, Stephan Schmid, Mascha Brost, Huw Davies, Luc Vinckx, 2021-04-21

This edited open access book gives a comprehensive overview of small and lightweight electric three and four wheel vehicles with an international scope. The present status of small electric vehicle (SEV) technologies, the market situation and main hindering factors for market success as well as options to attain a higher market share including new mobility concepts are highlighted. An increased usage of SEVs can have different impacts which are highlighted in the book in regard to sustainable transport, congestion, electric grid and transport related potentials. To underline the effects these vehicles can have in urban areas or rural areas several case studies are presented covering outcomes of pilot projects and studies in Europe A study of the operation and usage in the Global South extends the scope to a global scale Furthermore several concept studies and vehicle concepts on the market give a more detailed overview and show the deployment in different applications Traffic Flow Models Allowing for Pedestrians and Cyclists Samantha Y. Pedestrian-Cyclist Conflict Minimisation on Shared Paths and Footpaths AP-R287-06 Austroads Ltd,2006 Most urban transport strategies in Australia include the desire to increase walking cycling and public transport and correspondingly to reduce the extent of reliance on the private car This has arisen for a range of reasons initially environmental and sustainability related but increasingly related to issues of community and individual well being Pedestrians and cyclists whilst both being vulnerable road users compared to the occupants of a motor vehicle differ greatly from each other in terms of speed of travel ability to take evasive action and even the nature of the movement activity This activity is much more likely to be a social nature for the pedestrian The interaction between pedestrians and cyclists is increasingly causing safety concerns exacerbated by the use of wheeled recreational devices including wheelchairs powered scooters and gophers Some of these concerns are real and others are perceived but nevertheless important in terms of people's willingness to walk The more Governments are successful in increasing the amounts of walking and cycling the greater these concerns will become potentially limiting the extent and sustainability of such gains Paths and footpaths are essential spaces in the transport network to support walking and cycling activities If they are to continue to effectively support increased usage by both groups management of shared use particularly where that results in actual or potential conflict will need to be addressed
