A Secondary Analysis of Ohio School District Report Cards Charles Wayne Shirbish (Jr),2002     Improving Ohio's Schools ,2002     Government Intervention and Suburban Sprawl Michael Lewyn,2017-01-20 This book shows how suburban sprawl is at least partially a consequence of government spending and regulation and suggests anti sprawl policies that can make government smaller and or less intrusive Thus the book responds to the widely held view that automobile dependent suburban development also known as suburban sprawl is a natural result of the free market and of affluence and accordingly cannot be altered without massive government regulation     Ohio Schools ,1978     Poised for Progress Aaron Churchill,2014 On September 12th Ohio released school report card ratings for the 2013 14 school year This report compiles and analyzes the statewide data with special attention given to the quality of public schools in the Ohio Big Eight urban areas Akron Canton Cincinnati Cleveland Columbus Dayton Toledo and Youngstown both district and charter school sectors Using the state s key report card measures the performance index and value added ratings we assess the overall quality of each public school receiving these ratings in these areas and calculate the number of students in high quality seats in each area The key findings 1 There are too few high quality seats in Ohio s urban areas On average just 16 percent of public school seats including both district and charter were high quality in the Big Eight In contrast 36 percent of public school seats were low quality 2 High quality seats by sector A higher proportion of charter seats were high quality 22 percent compared to district seats 13 percent in the Big Eight urban areas 3 Low quality seats by sector A slightly lower proportion of charter seats were low quality 32 percent compared to district seats 38 percent in the Big Eight urban areas There is also variation in the performance of the charter school sectors across the Big Eight The charter sectors in Cleveland and Columbus had considerably higher proportions of high quality seats than the district run schools located in those cities In Cleveland 28 percent of charter seats were high quality compared to just 12 percent in the district Meanwhile in Columbus 32 percent of charter seats were high quality compared to just 8 percent in the district In other cities like Akron Canton and Toledo the traditional district had higher proportions of high quality seats compared to those cities charter school sectors An appendix contains tables that provide the building level data for the following public schools in the Ohio Big Eight urban areas 1 Akron 2 Canton 3 Cincinnati 4 Cleveland 5 Columbus 6 Dayton 7 Toledo and 8 Youngstown

Department of Education,2000     Ready for What? M. Elizabeth Graue, 1993-01-01 This book looks at readiness from a different perspective arguing that we must move away from the readiness as child characteristic so prevalent in education and the popular press Instead readiness is explained as an idea constructed by parents teachers and children as they interact in their neighborhoods and communities Graue describes three communities in the same school district a middle class suburban town of professionals a rural working class community and a group of Hispanic working class families making their way through their children s kindergarten experiences In each setting the local meaning of readiness is the underlying theme in the actions taken by parents and their attitudes about their children s first public school experience      Resources in Education ,1996      Cincinnati Magazine
