Cellular Respiration (1 of 5): Inputs and Outputs (BioFlix tutorial)

1 of 2

Part D - Oxidative Phosphorylation

In the last stage of cellular respiration, oxidative phosphorylation, all of the reduced electron carriers produced in the previous stages are oxidized by oxygen via the electron transport chain. The energy from this oxidation is stored in a form that is used by most other energy requiring reactions in cells.

From the following compounds involved in cellular respiration, choose those that are the net inputs and net outputs of oxidative phosphorylation.

Drag each compound to the appropriate bin. If a compound is not involved in oxidative phosphorylation, drag it to the "net input or output" bin. (Note that not all of the inputs and outputs of oxidative phosphorylation are listed.)
