The Female Sublime from Milton to Swinburne Catherine Maxwell, 2001 This innovative study of vision gender and poetry traces Milton's mark on Shelley Tennyson Browning and Swinburne to show how the lyric male poet achieves vision at the cost of symbolic blindness and feminisation Drawing together a wide range of concerns including the use of myth the gender of the sublime the lyric fragment and the relation of pain to creativity this book is a major re evaluation of the male poet and the making of the English poetic tradition The female sublime from Milton to Swinburne examines the feminisation of the post Miltonic male poet not through cultural history but through a series of mythic or classical figures which include Philomela Orpheus and Sappho It recovers a disfiguring sublime imagined as an aggressive female force which feminises the male poet in an act that simultaneously deprives and energises him This book will be required reading for anyone with a serious interest in the English poetic tradition and Victorian poetry

The Poetry of Indifference Erik Irving Gray, 2005 Indifference is a common even indispensable element of human experience But it is rare in poetry which is traditionally defined by its direct opposition to indifference by its heightened emotion consciousness and effort This definition applies especially to English poets of the nineteenth century heirs to an age that predicated aesthetics on moral sentiment or feeling Yet it was in this period Erik Gray argues that a concentrated strain of poetic indifference began to emerge The Poetry of Indifference analyzes nineteenth century works by Wordsworth Keats Byron Tennyson Robert Browning and Edward FitzGerald among others works that do not merely declare themselves to be indifferent but formally enact the indifference they describe Each poem consciously disregards some aspect of poetry that is usually considered to be crucial or definitive even at the risk of seeming indifferent in the sense of mediocre Such gestures discourage critical attention since the poetry of indifference refuses to make claims for itself This is particularly true of FitzGerald's Rubiy t one of the most popular poems of the nineteenth century but one that recent critics have almost entirely ignored In concentrating on this underexplored mode of poetry Gray not only traces a major shift in recent literary history from a Romantic poetics of sympathy to a Modernist poetics of alienation but also considers how this literature can help us understand the sometimes embarrassing but unavoidable presence of indifference in our lives
