The Multilingual Challenge for the Construction and Transmission of Scientific Knowledge Anne-Claude Berthoud, Laurent Gajo, 2020-11-15 Whereas it is now generally recognised that multilingualism is important for society culture and the economy the relevance of multilingualism for the world of science has still largely escaped attention But science too is created and transmitted in and through communication Today the construction and transmission of knowledge is based on a growing monolingualism with English as the lingua franca regarded as a condition of the universality of scientific knowledge However this idea is based on the illusion that languages are transparent and that the modes of communication are universal In this book it is shown how multilingualism can open different perspectives and improve the quality of knowledge by offering an antidote to the squeezing out of different academic and scientific cultures More precisely it is shown how multilingual approaches highlight the mediating role of language and in doing so optimize conceptualization communication and evaluation in science These findings are for one thing relevant to institutional language policies and for another open new lines of research taking scientific practices themselves as a field of investigation
