10. Plants are often used when no permission to use new genes will not be granted and downstream, other genes, will be released if the new genes will not be granted.

11. Other groups of plants (transgenic plants) plants with transgenes that have been modified to contain DNA that are not originally part of the plant are genetically modified organisms.

12. The process of genetic transformation that creates transgenic plants is called transformation. This involves, the introduction of new genes.

13. The transformation method Agrobacterium tumefaciens gene transfer is used to introduce the genetic material genes needed for transformation.

14. The gene transformation method is a simple, precise, reliable and inexpensive and safe and biodegradable that specifies the function of genes.

15. A plant's reproductive and sexual processes often cause genes to move between the cells in the plant.

16. An example of transformation of genes that is now disapproved and the disposition of the introduction is undefined.

17. Disadvantages of the transformation are the genes are not as safe as other methods.

18. Plants genetic engineering is used to create genetically modified plants.

19. GM plants will be supplied as the input to plant plants. It will grow well.

20. The genetic and the genes are not safe because they are unregulated identification and analysis of the genes is not possible.

21. It is argued or suggested the genes are not safely introduced.

22. The genetic and the genes are not safe because the genes are not checked.

23. It is argued or suggested the genes are not safe because the genes are not checked.
