1. Sample answer documents include an answer key and the instructions for marking the sample test pages as follows:

First, sample questions from English, Mathematics, Reading, and Science. These sample questions include some additional testing material to help demonstrate how you should mark answers. (Circle, underline, and check off the appropriate answer.)

The questions in each section are numbered, and the suggested answers for each question are listed on the answer document. The first answers are numbered to match the questions, and the rest of each row are listed in alphabetical order by suggestion.

For each question, five choices are listed across at least four rows on the answer document. The first row is numbered the same as the question. There is also one row to help you indicate the correct answer between choices A, B, C, D, and E. (You may mark an answer correct with a circle, underline, or check off, and you may mark an answer incorrect with a check off.)

Again, only one answer is correct. If you change your mind about an answer, indicate your first choice (circle, underline, or check off) and then indicate that your question is incorrect with a check off. If you are not sure, you may mark the question incorrect.
