Alien Seas Oceans In Space:

Alien Seas Michael Carroll, Rosaly Lopes, 2013-07-19 Oceans were long thought to exist in all corners of the Solar System from carbonated seas percolating beneath the clouds of Venus to features on the Moon's surface given names such as the Bay of Rainbows and the Ocean of Storms. With the advent of modern telescopes and spacecraft exploration these ancient concepts of planetary seas have for the most part evaporated. But they have been replaced by the reality of something even more exotic. For example although it is still uncertain whether Mars ever had actual oceans it now seems that a web of waterways did indeed at one time spread across its surface. The water in many places in our Solar System is a poisoned brew mixed with ammonia or methane. Even that found on Jupiter's watery satellite Europa is believed similar to battery acid. Beyond the Galilean satellites may lie even more alien oceans. Saturn's planet sized moon Titan seems to be subject to methane or ethane rainfall. This creates methane pools that in turn become vast lakes and perhaps seasonal oceans. Titan has other seas in a sense as large shifting areas of sand covering vast plains have been discovered. Mars also has these sand seas and Venus may as well along with oceans of frozen lava. Do super chilled concoctions of ammonia liquid nitrogen and water percolate beneath the surfaces of Enceladus and Triton? For now we can only guess at the possibilities. Alien Seas serves up part history, part current research and part theory as it offers a rich buffet of seas on other worlds. It is organized by location and by the material of which various oceans consist with guest authors penning specific chapters. Each chapter features new original art depicting alien seas as well as the latest ground based and spacecraft images. Original diagrams presents details of planetary oceans and related processes.

Exploring the Ocean Worlds of Our Solar System Bernard Henin, 2024-08-22 In the past 25 years planetary science has undergone a revolution with the discovery of vast oceans of liquid water within the icy moons of our Solar System. These subsurface oceans are concealed beneath thick ice layers. We refer to these moons and similar ocean bearing planetary objects as ocean worlds. In this 2nd edition we delve into and compare the latest scientific discoveries on 22 confirmed or potential ocean worlds ranging from the giant asteroid Ceres and the icy moons Europa and Enceladus to the distant dwarf planets of the outer Solar System such as Pluto, Sedna and Eris. Along the way we explore the contributions of multiple spacecraft such as the Pioneers, the Voyagers, Galileo, Cassini, Huygens and many others which have provided much of our current knowledge about these worlds as well as the latest scientific research on this subject. This book also explores the potential for life on each of the confirmed ocean worlds evaluating their habitability. Ultimately these might hold the key to answering fundamental questions about life. How did life begin? Is there life beyond Earth? Where do we come from? With contributions from leading planetary scientists at NASA, ESA and other institutions this book aims to be the definitive reference for anyone interested in this captivating subject.
